WOOL

BRADFORD.—Business quiet in home trade section, but machinery well employed at manufacturing end of the industry on export orders. Export trade in tops and yarns is very quiet. Yarn quotations for home trade are firm, but it is possible to buy at relatively lower prices if yarns are required for export trade.

DUBLIN STOCK EXCHANGE

GILT-EDGED ISSUES BUOYANT

ANOTHER BIG RISE IN BANK STOCK

Much busier conditions prevailed on the Dublin Stock Exchange yesterday and local issues were again the chief centre of interest, and good support was still in evidence, which resulted in many strong features. There was much more business passing in British Industrials and the undertone remained firm.

Home Government Funds were in strong request and the Second National Loan advanced 10s. to 109. The Third Loan spurted a point to 105 and Conversion Loan was raised sharply to 105. Four p.c. Exchequer Bonds firmed up to 104 and other issues were well maintained.

British Funds tended higher and 3½ p.c. War Loan made headway to 101¼. Banking issues were still strong buyers and Bank of Ireland stock spurted a further six points to 273. Nationals advanced 1s. 9d. to 36s. and Provincial Old jumped 3s. to 34s.

Guinness units were nominally harder at around 67s. 6d. Dublin Distillers "A" held 2s. 3d. Rails inclined to harden and Great Southern Pref. rose to 7 and Great Northern Deb. to 48¼. Dublin Tram Ord. moved up to 10s. 3d.

Alliance Gas Ord. repeated 23s. and Ranks (Ireland) Ord. improved to 16s. 6d. Goodbody Ord. strengthened 2s at 23s. 9d. and Sunbeam Wolsey Ord. fetched 34s., a rise of 1s. on the day. L. Jordan Ord. added pence, but Irish Sugar Pref. eased to 24s. 4½d. Cement Ord. and Clondalkin Paper Ord. held steady.

Tobaccos held steady to harder, with B.A.T. Ord. 77s. 6d. and Imperials 95s. 9d. Coats Ord. shaded off to 29s. 3d., but Courtaulds rose to 28s 4½d. Dunlop Rubbers at 28s. 3d. and Imperial Chemical Ord. at 26s. 3d. showed small gains. Woolworth Ord. quoted 56s. 3d. and Shell Transport Ord. 35s. 6d.

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE

RECORD PRICE FOR OLD WAR LOAN

FAIRLY FIRM UNDERTONE IN MARKETS

THE outstanding movement on the London Stock Markets yesterday was a further advance in 3½ per cent. War Loan to 101¼—a new high record. This improvement created firmness in other British Government securities and enabled markets generally to preserve a fairly firm undertone, despite the absence of any expansion in turnover.

Interest in Gilt-edged was not particularly brisk, but with Old War Loan showing firmness from the outset a modest volume of support sufficed to lift several other issues, and when trading ceased quotations presented an attractive appearance. In addition to the rise in Old War Loan, Old Consols, Local Loans and Consols Fours gained ¼ to ½.

Foreign Bonds failed to emerge from their recent inactivity, but some relief was supplied by inquiries for Chinese Government issues, notably the 5 per cent. 1912, which finally was 1½ up at 12½.

British Rails continued idle, and dealings were too limited to produce anything but trifling adjustments in prices. There was less going on in Argentines, and occasional offerings imparted an irregular tendency to B.A.G.S., B.A. and Western and Central Argentine Ord.

INDUSTRIALS MIXED

Industrials experienced another quiet day, and eventually made a mixed showing. Among the favoured issues were Woolworths, Chemicals, Guinness, Turner and Newall, Vickers, and Stewarts and Lloyds. On the other hand, Tobaccos were mainly easier and Dunlops lost a fraction. The leading Textile and Rayon issues were barely tested.

In Mines, Kaffirs again showed a cheerful trend, with Western Holdings at 8s. 9d., Rand Mines at £5 17s. 6d., and City Deep at 45s. 7½d. West Africans were seldom changed, while Tin and Copper shares remained idle.

The Oil share market had a rather firmer appearance, with Burmahs and Attocks prominent.

THE MONEY MARKET

The London Money Market again passed a very uneventful session yesterday. Money was still in abundant supply, with overnight loans readily available from b clearing and non-clearing lenders on the usual terms.

The silver market again lacked interest, and prices were fixed without change at 23 7/16d. and 23½d. per oz., respectively.

The Foreign Exchanges were quiet and uninteresting, with no quotable changes in rates.

STORE CATTLE SALES

MESSRS. GANLY AND SONS.

Numbers on offer smaller, but included a good selection of all classes, and following the improved tone in the beef market a better trade was experienced, with forward conditioned A.A. cross, Hereford cross and shorthorn bullocks considerably dearer. Other sorts very firm, and a complete clearance was effected. N. Greer's polly, Hereford cross and horned bullocks £29 to £26 12/6, and were 53/- to 50/- per cwt. J. C. McGuire's polly bullocks £28 7/6 (52/6 per cwt.). F. Donegan's A.A. cross bullocks £25 5/ (52/- per cwt.). Many other lots of forward bullocks made from £24 to £20, and were from 50/- to 46/ per cwt. Best lots of heifers £20 2/6 to £16 (48/- to 45/-), secondary sorts of bullocks and heifers made from 44/- to 40/- per cwt.

MESSRS. CRAIGIE BROS.

Messrs. Craigie Bros had slightly smaller supplies at their sale of store cattle this week. There was a slight improvement in the demand for aged cattle in forward condition, more especially coloured polly and A.A. cross bullocks, but last week's rates ruled most transactions. Young stock in fair request at the lower prices current for this class. The principal sellers were:—C. ## PIVOTAL ISSUES UNDER PRESSURE

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

NEW YORK, Thursday.

With the confused unpredictable foreign situation overshadowing the most optimistic business news the Stock Market declined with pressure against the recognised pivotal issues unsettling the list. However, with many traders marking time the volume was small. Meanwhile the delay in smoothing out the excess profits tax measure is proving a handicap to the market.

The turnover of 440,000 shares comprised 700 stocks, of which 127 advanced and 401 declined.

The opening was irregular. With the news somewhat disquieting prices declined anything to a point under light offerings, with pressure against the Steels, Aircrafts and Chemicals unsettling the remainder. The market continued quiet in the late dealings, but acted well in face of the prevailing uncertainties.

The close was heavy, with the final list mostly ranging to a point lower.

GAS COMPANY'S SALES REACH NEW HIGH RECORD

PLANS MADE TO SAFEGUARD WORKS IN ANY EMERGENCY

MOVING the adoption of the report and statement of accounts at the general meeting of the Alliance and Dublin Consumers' Gas Company, held yesterd at 24A D'Olier street, the Chairman, Mr. F. J. Dickens, J.P., said:—

Casting my mind back over the long years during which I have been your chairman, I cannot recollect many critical and anxious times through which the company has passed, but it seems to me that in no period have we had to contend with so many difficulties and be more alert and watchful of the company's interest than during the six months under review.

COAL STOCKS

As always, it has been necessary to provide adequate supplies of coal, and one of our chief endeavours has been to maintain our stocks at a satisfactory level. When, however, we came to renew our annual coal contracts which run from May to May we found that the usual procedure of peacetime had been replaced by a more complex system, whereby it was necessary to consult various controlling authorities in Great Britain. As the quantity we were able to cover from our normal sources was insufficient, all alternatives were explored, and eventually we succeeded in contracting for our full requirements. Although from this point the position became easier, and our current supplies were provided for, the problem still remained to restore our reserve stock to its former level, and, as far as possible, increase it.

In this respect we were fortunate as we were able to secure some suitable cargoes of gas coals, originally intended for another destination, which have helped materially in building up the reserve. Having regard to all these and other difficulties, our stock at the present time is by no means unsatisfactory, and it will be our object, as far as possible, so to maintain it while war conditions continue to exist.

To do this will be no easy task, as, in addition to coal supplies, our shipping is presenting us with additional problems born of the war. New regulations are making delays unavoidable, and with the shorter days of autumn and winter, we must expect the effect to be more pronounced.

INCREASED COSTS

I have not alluded so far to the question of cost, for the reason that, important as this is, we regard it as a secondary consideration to that of ensuring the maintenance of the gas supply, especially if, as at one time appeared likely, there were to be restrictions and shortages of domestic coal.

Increased costs, however, have been formidable. Six months ago I pointed out that, apart from increased freight, coal was costing us 4s. 3d. per ton than in 1936. I also told you then of our intention to increase the price of gas by 1.6 (one and six-tenths) pence per therm. At the time of making the computation on which this increase in the price of gas was based, we estimated a further addition of 1s. 9d. per ton in the price of coal, but we under-estimated the burden, for, instead of 1s. 9d., there was an increase of 3s. 6d.; thus, when account is taken of the alteration in our sources of supply, coal and freight alone are now costing us no less than 7s. per ton more than was anticipated as recently as last March—an additional expense in the neighbourhood of £70,000 per annum.

ESSENTIAL RAW MATERIAL

Gas oil is another essential raw material, of which we use large quantities. Fortunately, we have been able to secure and stock substantial supplies, and there is no uneasiness at present on this score. The price, however, has greatly increased; this was to be anticipated, having regard to the cost of ocean transport and the demands for oil. Needless to say, other materials are also greatly advanced in price.

Happily, there is the other side to the story. Coke has yielded a better return during the half-year, but, nevertheless, until quite recently the price was inadequate, having regard to the current cost of coal. Furthermore, there has been the anomaly that Alco, which is a graded household fuel, was sold at a cheaper rate than the ordinary un-cut coke, notwithstanding its additional cost of production. We have, therefore, brought the price of all grades of coke to the same level, this being a price at which it compares favourably with household coal. Naturally, we expect to obtain an increased revenue, although not sufficient to cover our additional outlay.

The value of coke as an economical, industrial and household fuel is now recognised, but there are many purposes not generally realised for which it is almost irreplaceable. It has always been our practice to conserve supplies for bakeries, hospitals and users of an essential character, but, while following this policy, we have at the same time endeavoured to arrange that our production should be distributed in what we considered the best interests of the community.

PREFERENCE FOR TAR

We have often stressed the fact that too much reliance is placed on imported bitumen and bitumen products for road-making purposes. It is true that many up-to-date surveyors do show a preference for tar, but there are others to whom the imported product seems to make a greater appeal. I have no quarrel with them in this, as one must always make allowance for divergence of views, but in fairness it should be noted that imported products of this type have ceased to be as readily obtainable as formerly, and we have, therefore, been called upon to supply the deficiency. The new customers are very welcome, and it is hoped that the quality of our product, together with the service afforded, will enable us to retain them permanently.

The effect has been to make considerable inroads into our tar stocks, and by the end of the season we shall have almost exhausted them. The extra revenue from both tar and coke was taken into account when we were computing the increase required in the price of gas.

Our additional revenue from the increase in the price of gas amounted only to £5,500. The current half-year, however, should reflect the full increase in the price of gas, offset by the latest increases in the cost of coal, oil and other materials.

RECORD SALES

Sales of gas were greater by more than 4 per cent. than in the corresponding half-year. This is a new record, and, bearing in mind the effect of the war and the fact that business and employment have suffered, I am sure you will consider the result satisfactory.

One must expect these factors at some time to have an effect, although, having regard to the essential usefulness of gas, there are no grounds at present for assuming that we shall be adversely affected to any considerable extent.

On the contrary, there is reason for us to be gratified, and it is a further good augury for the future to know that our sales of gas-consuming apparatus have been well maintained. A large number

DANCE LICENSEES' "INERTIA"

DUBLIN JUSTICE ON STATE REGULATIONS

What he called a "kind of inertia" about the requirements of the City Architect in regard to dance halls in Dublin was referred to by Mr. Little, Senior Justice, in Dublin District Court yesterday at the opening of the annual dance-hall licensing sessions.

Mr. Little said that this inertia amounted in some cases to the ignoring of the recommendations. He fixed November 20 next as the latest date on which he would hear applications for licences, and he said that he would refuse licences to halls which did not comply with the statutory requirements by that time.

Referring to statements about State interference with the amusements of the people and its effect on the attractions of rural life, Mr. Little said that the State legislation regulated the use of places of public amusement, and, instead of interfering with the legitimate amusement of the people, it provided for safety and amenities in those places. The hours of dancing had been fixed at 8 p.m. to midnight for parochial halls, 9 or 10 p.m. to 3 a.m. for hotel halls and public dance halls of a commercial kind, and in the case of public assembly rooms owned by local authorities the hours would be determined by the type of user.

Mr. Little also outlined certain matters which are required in the buildings in which dances are held. Dancing was not allowed after midnight on Saturdays nor during Lent, in accordance with Christian civilisation and common convention.

UNEMPLOYMENT FIGURES

An increase of 1,409 in the number of persons registered at the Employment Exchanges is recorded in the weekly return issued last evening. The total on 21st September was 64,102, as compared with 62,693 in the previous week. Of the total, 22,236 had unemployment insurance claims current; 13,005 had unemployment assistance applications current (with means), and 22,035 (without means); others were 6,826.

FAILURE TO STAMP CARDS

£190 STATED TO BE DUE

A number of summonses and eight civil bills were brought at Trim at the instance of the Minister for Local Government and the Minister for Industry and Commerce against Thomas Hobbs, building contractor, Kilmessan, with respect of offences under the National Health Insurance Act and the Unemployment Insurance Act.

Mr. D. J. Reilly, solicitor, who defended, admitted the offences, which were attributed to his client's sheer neglect.

The amount alleged to be due by the defendant was £190

The Justice said that he did not want to put Hobbs out of business. If he treated him as he deserved he would fine him £20 in each summons. If, however, he undertook to stamp the cards in future he would fine him 1s., with 6s. costs, in one summons, and 2s. in each of the others.

The undertaking was given, and the Justice adjourned the civil bills. Mr. A. Steen, State Solicitor, prosecuted.

DUBLIN DISTRICT COURT

ALLEGED BIGAMY AT SEVENTEEN

(BEFORE MR. CONROY)

Anne MacNeill (17), no fixed address, was returned for trial on a charge of having on August 3 last bigamously married William Flynn, Wellington place, Dublin, at Berkeley road Church, Dublin.

Evidence was given at the previous hearing that the girl had been married to Bernard MacNeill in Moate, Co. Westmeath, about three years before.

William Flynn stated that he had gone through a form of marriage with MacNeill at Berkeley road Church on August 3, and a few weeks later in Drogheda they were approached by a man who said that she was his wife. After an argument the three of them went to the Civic Guards and reported the matter. He did not know the girl was married before until he met the other man. He produced his marriage certificate.

Mr. J. A. Geary (Chief State Solicitor's office) prosecuted and Mr. J J. O'Connor defended.

The property on offer consisted of six houses in St. Joseph's road, off Prussia street, and was put up in three lots, lots 1 and 2 being pre-war houses with vacant possession; lot 3 consisted of a profit rent of £84 8/7, arising out of existing tenancies in Nos. 21, 23, 24 and 25 St. Joseph's road. Lot 1—20 St. Joseph's road—started at £300 and progressed with very spirited bidding until eventually knocked down at £660. Lot 2 also started at £300 for which there was also very keen bidding. This lot was knocked down at £620. Lot 3—profit rent of £84 8/7—was next offered in one lot, but was withdrawn at £1,100; next offered in separate lots, but failed to sell. Immediately after the auction this lot was sold for £1,200. The total sales realised £3,480. The houses sold had a P.L.V. of £14 per house. There was a very large attendance at the sale. Messrs. Horan and Devine (Mr. McCracken), solicitors, 12 Dame street, had carriage of sale. Other solicitors were:—Mr. Joseph Dixon, Parnell square; Messrs. Hickey and O'Reilly, O'Connell street; Mr. Brendan McCormick, O'Connell street; Mr. Grimes, of Gore and Grimes; Mr. Meehan, of F. Seale and Son; Mr. John Cullen, Bachelor's Walk; Mr. P. C. Moore, Dame street; Mr. Leon, St. Andrew street, etc.

OF INTEREST TO WOMEN

"WOOD PIGEON" is a Matita model, a grey jersey dress alternative to the wine dregs suit beneath the "New Forest" coat. The breast pockets are cut in one with the collar, forming a newer than new fashion. The V yoke and the front skirt pockets will be noted.

THE THREE C's

Carpets, Curtains, Covers

Home life always acquires an added importance when winter comes. As the bright summer days shorten and a chill creeps on at dusk, we tend to spend more and more time indoors and to become increasingly reliant on the amenities of our homes to provide us with comfort and cheer. This year more than ever we shall be dependent on our homes, for few will have much enthusiasm to seek diversion outside their own doors.

A bright companionable home is a pleasant place indeed, and is come by not by lavish expenditure, but by intelligent concentration on the things—often themselves unnoticed—which go to make up the whole effect of the contributions, though homeliness, carpets, curtains and covers can be considered fundamental. Each can drive comfort away if not used with care, but also each, with skilful management, can go a far way towards building up the picture.

CARPETS

The whole modern trend in carpeting has been towards close-fitting carpets in plain shades or sometimes with attractive borders. Manufacturers, realising the growing popularity of all-over carpets, have done much to assist in placing them within reach of everybody by reducing the cost, and, in many cases, eliminating the two former principal disadvantages of these carpets—namely, crushing and destruction by moths. It is now possible to obtain plain carpets which are guaranteed as proof against moths and are crush-resisting. A fitted carpet gives distinction to any room in a house, but to a bedroom it adds a cosiness which is luxury indeed.

An unusual feature, though to my mind very satisfactory, in the interests of comfort, is a fitted hair carpet as an alternative to lino in a bathroom. With such a carpet it is, of course, well to have a good absorbent bath mat.

All carpets are improved by the addition of rugs, and there are no rugs better than the ones you make yourself. There are few more fascinating or profitable hobbies for the winter evenings than rug-making, and in many families there is a communal rug in the course of manufacture, so that any member who has a few minutes to spare can carry on the good work.

CURTAINS

For heavy outer curtains the best possible material should be used. This will be rather expensive at first, but will pay well in the long run by giving years of service. Although the material be heavy, there is no reason why outer curtains should not be brightly coloured. Then if transparent, attractively patterned inner curtains are used, the effect at night when both are drawn will be very pleasing.

COVERS

The decorative effect of a room is founded in the carpet and carried out in the curtains and chair covers. The variety of shades, styles and designs in covers is so immense that to write of them comprehensively in a small space would be impossible. If you have bright rooms don't be afraid to have plenty of colour about your covers. For modern rooms covers in check designs are extremely effective, but must be used with discretion. Bright-flowered designs, either on pale or dark grounds, can, if well chosen, be the making of a room, giving it both character and comfortable appearance.

Line the sandwich tin with the short crust pastry, marking the edge neatly with a knife. ## HEALTH CONDITIONS IN GALWAY

CITY M.O.H. AND A MENACE

FROM OUR CORRESPONDENT.

GALWAY, Thursday.

Conditions regarding public health in the city could only be described as deplorable, Dr. T. Powell, M.O.H., told Galway Corporation to-day. A septic tank and municipal dump at Bohermore were reported on by Dr. Powell as being a menace to public health. The tank, he said, was only capable of doing one-quarter the work required of it, and the filter beds were not adequate, even for one-tenth of the demands on them. A whole new system of sewerage was necessary for the area.

It was decided to ascertain the cost of a new system to replace the tank, and that the municipal dump be inspected by Co. M.O.H., with Dr. Powell and the Borough Surveyor.

CARLTON CINEMA

With Tyrone Power in the entirely new rôle of gangster, with exotic Dorothy Lamour as a night club hostess, in "Johnny Apollo," will provide unusual entertainment for Carlton patrons to-day. With these two most popular stars, the strong cast includes Edward Arnold, Lionel Atwill, Lloyd Nolan, Charley Grapewin, Russell Hicks and Jonathan Hale. As "Lucky" Du Barry, the Night Club Queen, Dorothy Lamour sings the two new songs, "This is the Beginning of the End" and "Dancing for Nickels and Dimes." The fast moving story is packed with thrills and drama, and concerns a college man (Tyrone Power), who turns gangster when he is spurned by his wealthy friends because the father he idolises is sent to prison for embezzlement. He adopts the alias of "Johnny Apollo," and joins gangster Mickey Dwyer, brilliantly played by Lloyd Nolan. A thrilling climax brings to a conclusion one of the greatest pieces of screen entertainment seen in Dublin for a considerable time.

"CO-ORDINATION"

VOLUNTARY SERVICE IN EIRE

CONFUSED COUNCILS AND DIFFUSED EFFORT

By SCRUTATOR.

IN the current jargon of emergency organisations one particular word tends to be seriously overworked. Co-ordination—for the moment replacing its first cousins "efficiency and economy"—has become the resort of hard-driven politicians and the critic's most popular weapon. Whatever the defect or difficulty it can be "co-ordinated" out of existence. So, like the salt whose savour fades away, co-ordination tends to lose its incisive value.

Yet, having no convenient analogue, one must resort to its use, but subject to the condition—as lawyers would say—that hereinafter the word co-ordinate means—to harmonise with a view to common and effective action. Harmony—be it noted—not unification.

Where, then, is there serious lack of harmony? Where signs of present and prospective discord in voluntary efforts to achieve common and effective action in emergency conditions? Where lie dangers of discord between official and voluntary agencies? Where the need and possibilities of co-ordinated effort?

Three particular groups of activities suggest the following questions: Why should Red Cross, St. John Ambulance and the Order of Malta maintain separate headquarters and local organisations? Are not their functions and activities, for all practical purposes, identical?

L.S.F. AND A.R.P.

Is there any good reason why the "B" division of the Local Security Force and Air Raid Precautions bodies of volunteers, should continue to operate as independent movements? Would not their activities in moments of emergency inevitably overlap, with resulting uncertainty and confusion? Are not both of these bodies expected to co-operate with official forces if, and when, emergencies arise?

Why should not their relationships to each other, and to official agencies, be as clearly defined as are those of the "A" division of the L.S.F. to the Army?

EMERGENCY AND PARISH COUNCILS

Then, what of Local Emergency Committees and Parish Councils, whose functions, methods and general outlooks seem to be quite hopelessly confused? Owing allegiance to the county and regional emergency commissioner, one parish demands official recognition and support, while the next-door Parish Council—adopting the policy of Muintir na Tire—declares its desire and intention to remain independent of official resources and supervision. Inside the boundaries of one parish an active council, who conceive their business to be the co-ordination of all emergency activities—L.S.F., Red Cross, etc.—within their bailiewick; on the other side of the boundary a council whose members are satisfied merely to call on somebody else to do, or not to do, something or other. One group of councils whose declared wish is to be incorporated permanently in the machinery of local for dissolution when emergencies pass; and administration; another group who declare yet another group whose aim is to survive as voluntary bodies, free of official entanglements. At least three classifications with little, if any, common denominator of purpose or method! Rather, indeed, groups of volunteers whose policies and programmes would appear to be hopelessly irreconcilable!

DEFINITION WANTED

When, several weeks ago, the Irish Times drew attention to the confusion that would inevitably arise from the Government's decision to identify local Emergency Committees with Parish Councils designed by Muintir na Tire as permanent cultural and social agencies—with the primary and overriding purpose of stemming the tide of rural emigration—the warning seemed to go unheeded. Since then experience has shown that hopeless muddles, widespread misapprehensions, and waste of effort have been among the results of the official decision to follow what was conceived to be the line of least resistance.

Not alone has that failure to distinguish between temporary expedients and the gradual spread of voluntary Councils, in response to local initiative, gone far to corrupt the outlooks, and imperil the efficiency, both of Emergency Committees and Parish Councils, but it has precipitated action upon issues of much more abiding importance. While certain Emergency Committees have indicated their intention to seek later recognition as permanent Councils under the egis of Muintir na Tire, others have determined to seek permanent recognition and functions of a totally different character; functions that have now been developed and ably advocated by the Rev. Father Devane, S.J.—with the support of Senators Tierney and O'Dwyer—in a widely circulated pamphlet. ("A Guide to Parish Councils," published by the Kenny Press, price threepence.)

VOLUNTARY OR STATUTORY?

Recommended especially to Regional and County Emergency Commissioners, and to the members of Emergency Committees, that pamphlet embodies what can only be described as a condemnation of the principles and programme of Muintir na Tire. Basing his arguments on brief reviews of Parish Council functions in England, Portugal, Denmark and France, Father Devane concludes that bodies on the British model—with certain powers of taxation and charged with statutory responsibilities—should be constituted as the basis of Eire's entire structure of local government.

It is only fair to Father Devane to mention that he pays a graceful tribute to Father Hayes, as founder of Muintir na Tire, for his efforts "to make the Irish public realise the vital importance of the people of the land"—a tribute which, however, in no way modifies the author's profound dissent from the aims and doctrines of Muintir na Tire.

NEED FOR CLARITY

If we now relate such irreconcilable conflicts of view between accredited advocates of Parish Council philosophy to the activities of local committees whose sole function is to co-operate with regional and county commissioners in framing and giving effect to emergency expedients, the need for clarification should be abundantly evident. When emergency days have passed it may be possible to co-ordinate the views of Father Hayes and Father Devane; but that, surely, is not the business of emergency committees.

It may be necessary to anticipate critics of the view that effective action calls for the co-ordination of the various volunteer bodies mentioned. They may urge that official interference would tend to diminish voluntary effort; that the organisers and supporters of such praiseworthy movements should be left perfectly free to do, or not to do, whatever they may desire.

SEMI-OFFICIAL BODIES

Within certain limits, the writer heartily assents to that view. For that reason he leans strongly towards the idea of voluntary, rather than statutory, parish councils. But the fact must be faced that most, if not all, of the organisations concerned with emergency duties are either semi-official bodies, or in some degree dependent on official support, and, therefore, subject to varying measures of control by Government Departments.

MINISTERS RESPONSIBLE

That being the case, responsibility for the co-ordination of their overlapping and interlocking activities would appear to rest on the shoulders of the Ministers concerned. As some of the bodies mentioned are concerned with purely defence activities (e.g., A.R.P. and L.S.F. organisations), and as all are indirectly concerned with military contingencies, responsibility for the necessary initiative would seem to rest with the Minister for the Co-Ordination of Defensive Measures, a suggestion which leads to thoughts of co-ordination in the sphere of departmental activities. Outside the official hierarchy nobody seems to know what Department or Minister is in control of emergency steps. Who, for instance, is responsible for A.R.P. organisation? Is it the Minister for Defence or the Minister for Local Government?

To what Minister does responsibility fall for Red Cross, St. John Ambulance and Order of Malta operations? What Minister, if any, has taken steps to relate the work of local emergency committees to the local operations of other emergency bodies? Or, can it be that the Government's right hand is unaware of what its left hand is doing? That, at all events, is the belief of many well-disposed citizens who are anxious to help but look in vain for guidance. On another occasion it may be possible to examine the reasons for that belief.

DR. STEEVENS'S HOSPITAL

At their meeting on Tuesday, September 24, the Governors and Guardians of Dr. Steevens's Hospital recorded their sorrow at the death on September 11, 1940, at the age of ninety-three, of their colleague, Mr. William Rochfort, the senior member of the Board.

William Rochfort was elected a Governor on June 11, 1891, and consequently has been a member of the Board for the past forty-nine years. The family of Rochfort has been connected with the hospital for two hundred and thirty years.

When Dr. Richard Steevens made his will (the day before he died) on December 14, 1710, he nominated as one of his trustees for the building and the management of the hospital Robert Rochfort, Chief Baron of the Court of Exchequer. Madam Steevens in her celebrated deed, dated July 11, 1717, by which she provided the money for the building of the hospital, also named this Robert Rochfort as a trustee, and he continued to act till his death on October 10, 1727, just before the building was completed. In the Act of Parliament for incorporating the hospital (3 Geo. II., c. XXVII.) passed in April, 1730, George and John, two sons of the Chief Baron, were named as Governors. George died in the following July, but John remained a Governor till his death on January 29, 1771. Since then there has always been a member of the family on the Board.

John Rochfort, elected 1771, resigned 1802.

John Staunton Rochfort, elected 1802, died 1844.

Horace William Noel Rochfort, elected 1844, died 1891.

William Rochfort, elected 1891, died September 11, 1940.

There is a further interesting connection of the family with the hospital. The widow of the Chief Baron, Hanah Rochfort, bequeathed to her son John the sum of £230 "to be laid out in such charity as he should desire." On April 10, 1747, John Rochfort presented this money to the Governors of the hospital, "upon the express condition that the said John Rochfort and his heirs for ever shall have the right of nomination of one of the nurse-keepers' places in the said hospital, subject never-the-less to all the rules and orders and directions of the said Governors." On that day John Rochfort nominated Ann Seagrave as a nurse-keeper. The original parchment recording this gift still hangs in the boardroom of the hospital, and a few years ago the late Mr. William Rochfort exercised his privilege and nominated a probationer nurse. It would not be easy to find a similar instance of a family so long and so honourably connected with the administration of a hospital.

DUBLIN GRAMOPHONE SOCIETY

"Standing room only" was the order of the night on Wednesday last in the Central Hotel, Exchequer street, when the first recital of the season by the Dublin Gramophone Society was given by Mr. F. Levy. Magnificent as were most of the singing records, particularly Tiana Lemnitz, Erna Berger, who sang the "Queen of Night" aria, and Gerhard Husch as Papageno, the outstanding feature was the conducting by Sir Thomas Beecham. The concerted numbers also were a delight to hear.

FIRE-FIGHTING SERVICES

INVOLVED SITUATION IN MEATH

NAVAN, Wednesday.

Meath Board of Health has received from Mr. Duffy, County Engineer, a report in connection with a communication of the Department of Defence regarding fire-fighting organisation in Meath, stating that the question of organising fire-fighting services for the county has become somewhat involved owing to the various bodies coming into the matter with different functions and powers.

The County Council, as the scheme-making authority under A.R.P., was responsible for seeing that adequate measures were taken to deal with fire-fighting in the county during the emergency. The three Urban Councils, as sanitary authorities, were responsible for fire-fighting organisation within their respective areas. The Board of Health, as sanitary authority, was responsible for arrangements for the remainder of the county.

Any of those authorities could establish a fire brigade or make an agreement with another fire brigade authority to give services in relation to fires occurring in the sanitary district. On this basis proposals have been put forward with a view to dividing the Meath health district into two sections, one section to be served by the Drogheda Brigade and the other by the Navan Brigade.

On the question of establishing a county fire brigade he was of the opinion that the best solution would be to have Navan Fire Brigade established on a standard adequate to meet the fire brigade requirements of the County Meath health district.

The Secretary was instructed to get into touch with Navan Town Clerk, also with the Board's legal adviser as to the Board's liabilities in the matter.

Dakar and Spain

It is too soon yet to form an estimate of the results of the abandonment of the Dakar enterprise. Undoubtedly, British prestige has suffered another blow, and, according to certain American newspapers, the West African fiasco will do more harm to the British cause than the withdrawal from Narvik. The whole business seems to have been bungled badly. Not only was General de Gaulle misinformed regarding the attitude of the French population of Senegal; but three French warships were allowed by the British Fleet to sail through the Straits of Gibraltar to Dakar without let or hindrance, and, apparently, it was the presence of these vessels that encouraged Governor Boisson to reject General de Gaulle's ultimatum. The whole matter will be raised in the British House of Commons at the earliest opportunity; but nothing could be more futile than post mortem discussion in time of war. Spilled milk never can be re-bottled, and, if the British are wise, they will write off the Dakar affair as a total loss and forget about it as quickly as possible. The most unhappy feature of this unfortunate incident is the fact that it seems to have been the cause of serious bloodshed. Certainly, it has worsened the already bad relations between Great Britain and the French Government, and, to that extent, at any rate, must be regarded as a victory for the "Axis" Powers. Once again the British have lost the initiative. They are making a magnificent defence of London and their other industrial cities; but the effect of the Dakar débâcle on foreign opinion—particularly on opinion in Spain—cannot be overlooked. Yesterday Count Ciano, the Italian Foreign Minister, left Rome for Berlin, where he will have important conversations with the German Government. Herr von Ribbentrop, his German vis-à-vis, was in Rome last week, and went back to Berlin only on Monday; and it is expected that vital decisions will be reached while Count Ciano is in the German capital. Before he left Rome he had an interview with the Japanese Ambassador, which may prove to have an important bearing on the future course of the war. It will be remembered that Japan is a partner with Germany and Italy in the famous Anti-Komintern Pact, and, although Nippon's enthusiasm may have been shaken slightly by Herr von Ribbentrop's bargain with Comrade Molotoff last August twelvemonths, the Japanese Government still is in intimate touch with Rome and Berlin. No report has been issued concerning Count Ciano's conversations with the Japanese Ambassador; but it was stated yesterday with some show of authority that Japan would enter the war on the side of the "Axis" Powers if the United States of America should decide to go to the help of Great Britain. Presumably, Japan's agreement with the French Government, whereby her troops have been granted a free passage through Indo-China, was made with German approval; and, although technically Japan continues to be neutral, there can be very little doubt regarding her sympathies.

From the British point of view the attitude of Spain is of more immediate importance than that of Japan. Señor Suñer is still in Berlin, where, undoubtedly, he will meet Count Ciano during the next few days. Next to General Franco himself, Señor Suñer, who is the Caudillo's brother-in-law, is the most influential man in Spain. He is leader of the Falangist party, which represents the extreme right wing in Spanish politics, and he always has had close relations both with the Italian Fascists and the German Nazis. Will General Franco take an active part in the war? After their experiences during the civil war the Spanish people cannot have much enthusiasm for another struggle. Their country was exhausted after two years of bitter fighting, and at least a generation must pass before normal conditions can be restored. On the other hand, General Franco is under certain definite obligations both to Italy and to Germany, who gave him valuable assistance against the Republicans. Doubtless, he will be given tempting offers of additional territory, including Gibraltar and portion of Northern Africa; and it is quite possible that he either will enter the war on the side of the "Axis" Powers, or will be persuaded to grant free passage to German and Italian troops in order to facilitate an attack on Gibraltar. According to the Popolo di Roma, Spain at the moment is in a condition of "pre-belligerency," such as that in which Italy found herself just before the collapse of the French army. Very naturally, the Italians are anxious to secure control of Gibraltar. They declare that the British fleet in the Mediterranean comprises some seventy per cent. of the entire Royal Navy, and believe that, if the "Axis" Powers should capture Gibraltar, this mighty force would be "bottled up" in the Middle Sea. Count Ciano's hand undoubtedly has been strengthened by General de Gaulle's failure to land his troops at Dakar. The motives that caused the British to withdraw their forces from the West African port will be ignored in a cynical world; the fact of their withdrawal must remain. Nevertheless, whether or not Spain joins the ranks of the "Axis" Powers, whether or not Gibraltar falls to the Italians, the final issue of the war will be decided, not in the Mediterrancan, or even in the Red Sea, but in the skies above Great Britain. In order to win the war Germany and Italy must be able to crush British resistance at home if they cannot destroy the British Navy, whose blockade of the Continent is tightening every day. Can they destroy the Royal Air Force? That is the vital question.

Northern Discontent

A vote of censure on the Government was defeated in the Northern Ireland House of Commons on Wednesday by 28 votes to 4. The motion was described in advance as the most serious challenge to the Government since it was established nearly twenty years ago, but the only justification for attaching so much importance to the motion lay in the fact that it was proposed by a former member of the Cabinet. The actual voting, with one Labour member and two Independent Unionists following the "rebel" ex-Minister into the lobby, while twenty members of the House either were not present or did not vote, indicates that in the Parliament itself determined opposition to the Government is numerically insignificant. The grounds upon which it was sought to censure Lord Craigavon and his colleagues were that the war effort of the six counties had not been all that it ought to be, and that the problem of unemployment had not been tackled with enterprise. Mr. E. Warnock, K.C., the leader of the attack, must have an intimate knowledge of the remissness of the Cabinet in these matters, but he offered the House no "sensational" details. Reports of the speeches in the debate, and of others that have been made in the North in recent years, indicate that the Unionist dissatisfaction with the Government is based on a natural desire for change—Lord Craigavon and some of his Ministers have been in office since the Parliament first was created—on a desire for government by younger and more ingenious men, and on the feeling that the economic and industrial position of Northern Ireland seems to be almost hopeless while the present Administration is in office.

In some matters a great deal of initiative has been shown in the six counties. Its Department of Agriculture has been administered with shrewdness and efficiency. It led the rest of these islands in many aspects of motor legislation, and its preparatory schools are an example to the rest of Ireland. Its Ministers, however, instead of advertising the real accomplishments of their departments, confine most of their public speeches to subject matter that has been used, with modifications and variations, since the early years of the Home Rule campaign, thereby suggesting that they are not particularly interested in mundane affairs, such as education and agriculture, and that the real authors of the successes in those fields have been civil servants and not politicians. Nobody who has read of the failure of other democratic countries to solve the problem of unemployment would condemn the Northern Ireland Government because it has failed also; but its critics condemn it because—so they contend—it has shown no disposition to attempt any revolutionary step that might increase the amount of available work. Mr. Warnock in Wednesday's debate declared that the Government was composed in the main of "tired and jaded men," and if that impression is growing among their former supporters the Ministers must blame their own speeches, and especially their lack of courage in tackling tragic situations for which conservatism has no remedy. Unfortunately for them, men who would make changes in the Government of Northern Ireland are opposed by one of the most efficient party machines that ever have existed. That fact is demonstrated once again by the failure of any member of the party to follow Mr. Warnock into the division lobby. It was not the Ulster Unionist party machine, however, that caused the Nationalist members to abstain from supporting the vote of censure. They may have had reasons for abstention, even though their leader, Mr. T. J. Campbell, K.C., took part in the debate; but until they show a disposition to cooperate with other Opposition elements in the North, and especially with those who were at one time in the Unionist ranks, the prospect that Lord Craigavon will be faced with anything resembling a "serious challenge" must be remote.

Street Scene

Perhaps, a time will come when the air-raid shelters which have begun to dot the streets of Dublin will be required to demonstrate their utility. We shall be thankful for them then, but in the meanwhile we must reconcile ourselves to their unbeautiful presence. Things of beauty they certainly are not: it is doubtful, indeed, if all the vandals in our country, working in concert for the space of half a year, could have devised any structures less attractive to the eye. Concrete is a useful material, but there is a sour and wintry look about it that makes a fine day seem wet and a wet day seem wetter, while the uncompromising, windowless rectangularity of the shelters is hardly less repellent to the eye than it will be, presumably, to flying splinters. Nevertheless, we must endure the disfigurement of our fair city, praying the while for the swift return of peace and with it the restoration of our streets to their "pre-emergency" selves. We do not know if anything can be done to render the monstrosities less monstrous. It is too much, perhaps, to ask that the Corporation shall entwine them with flowering creepers, and we are not sufficiently expert to know if gaily-coloured paint or distemper "takes" on concrete. It may be that some day our Irish artists will be induced to try what they can do in the way of decoration, and the unlovely shelters will become an ornament to the city, rather than an eyesore—but we doubt it. Shelters are necessary evils, an essential part of the unpleasantness of modern war, and as necessary evils they must be regarded, in a similar category to castor-oil, closing hours and income-tax collectors. They exist because, much as we may dislike them, we cannot do without them. Let us be spared, however, the final horror of seeing the shelters used as hoardings. The poster menace is not so formidable as it was: thanks to the political truce, there seems to be small likelihood of a general election in the near future, with its lavish employment of bills, and the shortage of paper certainly will help to mitigate the nuisance. Yet those expanses of concrete, so conveniently fronting what estate agents call the main arteries of traffic, will be a well-nigh irresistible temptation to the conscientious bill-sticker, and, for the sake of the public at large, he must be taught to keep himself under control.

25 YEARS AGO

From the Irish Times, September 27, 1915.

Allied Victories in France.

The Anglo-French Armies on Saturday achieved the most substantial successes of many months, when south of the Bassee Canal they captured over five miles of trenches, penetrating in some places to a distance of 4,000 yards. South of the Menin road, where vigorous bayonet fighting followed a heavy artillery bombardment, they gained about 1,000 yards of trenches, and captured some 1,700 prisoners, eight guns and several machine guns.

In Champagne, along a fifteen-mile front, there was also very severe fighting, and the captures over the whole Western front during the day amounted to about 20,000 prisoners, 24 field guns, and large quantities of ammunition.

Belfast and the Halfpenny Post.

At a meeting of the Belfast and District Chamber of Trade the new Budget proposals were discussed, and the following resolution was adopted:

"That this Committee approves generally of the Budget, but consider that the Chancellor of the Exchequer should reconsider the abolition of the halfpenny postage, as it will strike a severe blow to a considerable portion of the community, and the resulting effect to the revenue would be very slight."

SUBSCRIPTIONS AND APPEALS

THE MOUNT STREET CLUB.

TO THE EDITOR OF THE IRISH TIMES.

SIR,—At the present moment a large number of men are engaged on the Club farm and allotments at work which necessitates being out of doors in all weathers, and a good many of them are not suitably equipped.

It has occurred to me that sportsmen and others might have rubber boots and waterproofs which are not good enough for their own use but, if repaired, would be quite suitable for men engaged on land work, and I appeal to those people of good will who have such articles that are not in immediate use to pass them along to the Club, where they will be of great service to men who are making a valiant effort to help themselves and their comrades.

A postcard or telephone call to the Club (61838) will bring a messenger to any address given.—Yours, etc.,

J. J. NEWCOME, Hon. Secretary.

LONDON LETTER

SHELTER QUESTION COMPLICATIONS

59 FLEET STREET, LONDON,
THURSDAY NIGHT.

THE shelter question in London is becoming somewhat complicated owing to the growth of the practice of allowing people to book their beds by placing cushions and blankets in position in the early evening or, in some cases, in the afternoon, and then leaving the shelter only to return in the evening when the warning siren sounds. This system causes confusion, as many of the shelters are full when the raid starts, and wayfarers are refused admission. Other difficulties have come to light, but the great problem at the moment is whether the booking of positions in shelters by those who do not intend to take up their positions until later in the day should be permitted. It was intended that accommodation should be available for people caught in the streets during a raid, but this will not be possible if the total space is taken previously by those who have deposited pillows and rugs to reserve the places.

Evacuation from London

The registration of mothers and children for evacuation from London was proceeded with to-day, and, whereas on former occasions when registration has been open the parents were slow to take advantage of the scheme, to-day the authorities were overwhelmed with applications. Transport by rail and road is by no means an easy matter in these days, but the authorities have taken all possible measures to expedite the departure of the children to other parts of the country. Yesterday nearly eight hundred were sent away, and to-day the number rose to one thousand eight hundred. At present children are being evacuated in about three days of registration, and it is hoped to overtake the arrears so that they may be sent away the day after the details have been registered. The experience gained during previous evacuation schemes which did not attract as many children as expected has proved of immense advantage in enabling the present scheme to function smoothly.

The Closed Coastline

The closing of long stretches of coastline to holiday-makers has resulted in a large increase in the number of people visiting inland resorts, riverside towns and villages and similar places. In the majority of such places the amount of accommodation is strictly limited, and visitors find themselves on arriving at their destination either unable to find accommodation at all or else compelled to make a search for it elsewhere. The intensification of the bombardment of London from the air has sent many thousands of people away, and certain districts normally sparsely populated have become congested areas. The entire character of some places has been transformed from rural peace to the noise and activity associated with busy towns.

The Keeping of Pigs

Special efforts are to be made to encourage the keeping of pigs by small holders in rural districts by making increased supplies of domestic waste food available for them. There has been a vast increase in the salvage operations carried on throughout the country, but it is believed that there is scope for an enormous increase in the amount of pig-food which could be collected from urban districts. It is a matter of collection, transport and distribution, and the three-fold problem is to be tackled without delay. In some districts plans have been made already for the cartage of waste domestic food suitable for pigs to country districts, and the work is to be extended.

More Horses in the Country

The transformation of the British cavalry regiments into mechanised units, and the substitution of tractors for animals for the movement of guns, has not been followed by the entire abolition of horses for military purposes, and it is probable that there are more horses in this country owned by the Army now than at the beginning of the war. At the time of the break-down of French resistance several consignments of horses were on the high seas on their way to the Continent, and these were diverted to British ports. Since then they have been taken over by a remount unit of the British Army, and are being trained for use as chargers, gun-horses or transport animals, in order that they may be available should the necessity for their services arise.

IRISHMAN'S DIARY

Army Colours

A year ago there was little visible evidence that we possessed an efficient Army, and as the evidence was confined to occasional glimpses of a few off-duty soldiers in the streets a stranger might still have returned to his own land with the impression that, even if we had an Army, it was one without officers.

How rapidly things have changed!

It is true that the emergency did not produce here, as it did in Britain, an immediate order that officers of the forces should wear uniform at all times; but necessity would appear to have outrun red-tape, and officers in uniform have now become so common a sight at public functions and in the streets that I have been obliged to add a new chapter to my general knowledge.

I began by inquiring into the meaning of the different colours which are worn below officers' rank badges. I learned that scarlet denotes an officer of the General Headquarters Staff and blue an officer of a Command or Brigade Staff. Infantry officers have purple all to themselves, but yellow is shared by the Artillery, the Air Corps, and the Medical and Ordnance Services.

The Forage Cap

Another colour problem to which I sought a solution is that of the uniforms themselves. Everybody knows, of course, that a green uniform with blue facings denotes a volunteer, but the uniform of both officers and men of the Regular Army has also undergone a recent change.

The new "battle dress" of the Irish soldier is a slightly lighter grey-green than the old uniform, and is consequently less visible at a distance, while the new cloth for officers' uniforms is a slightly darker green, and is now the correct colour for breeches, as well as tunics.

Finally, there is the little matter of headgear. The more general use of the "tin hat" has made necessary the more general addition of the "forage cap"—now favoured by the British and most continental armies—instead of the stiff-peaked service cap. The soft-cloth, triangular, and generally "natty" cap, can so easily be stowed away in the pocket or the "pack" whenever the "tin hat" becomes more desirable as a head covering, and the old type service cap is, therefore, being gradually replaced by that which up to a few months ago was, in Ireland, exclusive to the Volunteers.

Plain Grey-green

In Britain the return to popularity of the soft "forage cap" also allows the officers of various regiments and services to add a touch of colour to their drab battle dress. The artillery officer, for instance, wears a blue cap with a scarlet top, the Army Service Corps officer wears a blue cap with a yellow cording and a white top, the Royal Engineers are less ornate with a red corded blue cap, but lancer and hussar officers proudly display in their forage caps the full range of colours of their once-famous full-dress uniforms.

In the regular Defence Forces of Eire, however, the new caps are plain grey green for all corps and services, and all display the same badge. It is only in the Volunteers that a little variety in colouring is permissible.

Herbert Jefferson

I see that my friend, Mr. Herbert Jefferson, M.A., J.P., is retiring from the position of manager of the Royal Insurance Company's office at Royal avenue, Belfast.

Mr Jefferson, who is a member of the Committee of the Trinity College (Dublin) Association, is also the honorary secretary of the Trinity College (Dublin) Association of Northern Ireland, which has done so much to keep Trinity men in the North in touch with one another and with their Alma Mater.

His retirement draws attention to the development of insurance business in the last half-century and how it has contributed to the country's commercial expansion and stability. His father, the late Mr. W. J. Jefferson, J.P., started out in insurance as far back as 1879 as resident secretary of the Queen's Insurance Company, which was absorbed by the Royal in 1891. He built up a large business, mainly in the insurance of linen exports and other commodities from Belfast, in addition to the usual life and fire insurance business, and was succeeded by his two sons, W. J. Jefferson, who retired two years ago, and Mr. Herbert Jefferson.

Pere et Fils

Mr. Jefferson, in his retirement, carries with him the esteem and affection not only of the staff, but of a large host of friends in the commercial life of Belfast. He intends to continue to serve the community in his leisure in the various activities to which he has devoted his talents and energy.

His son Mr. H. L. S. Jefferson, M.A., LL.B. (T.C.D.), is now associated with the family firm of solicitors, Messrs. C. and H. Jefferson, Belfast.

As for myself, I prefer to think of Herbert Jefferson as a very kind friend, who has done many a service to me, and has been—as I hope, he will remain—a tower of strength to the T.C.D. Association in the North. May the shadow of that cock-eyed bowler hat of his never grow less! It seems ridiculous to me that he should be retiring; but he apparently knows better.

Mr. Ralph Cusack

Mr. Ralph Cusack, whose exhibition of pictures opens at the Dublin Painters' Gallery—No. 7 St. Stephen's Green, if you do not know it by this time—used to live in a villa at Mentone, almost on the border between France and Italy.

He left it for Ireland in May, 1939, which was just as well, because shortly after—a year later—it was destroyed during the Italians' brief campaign against France. The lovely Port St. Louis in the town was destroyed by the French before they finally capitulated.

I am unacquainted—and presumably shall be until next Monday—with Mr. Cusack's work, but people who know it tell me that the strong colours of Southern Europe are a dominant influence in it. I look forward to his show with what used to be called pleas

AXIS ACTIVITIES INTENSIFIED

Speculation on Ciano's Visit to Berlin

DISCUSSIONS LIKELY ON SPAIN AND JAPAN

THERE were more stirrings and departures in the Axis camps yesterday as Count Ciano (Italian Foreign Minister) left Rome "for a short visit" in Berlin, and the German wireless announced that German and Fascist Ministers of Agriculture would get together in Northern Italy on September 29-30.

Meanwhile a Tokyo informant said that Japan would actively support Germany if the United States entered the war.

Foreign circles in Rome thought that Count Ciano's talk with the Japanese Ambassador before leaving for Berlin had strengthened Axis ties with Japan. It was considered problematical, however, whether the meeting would lead to a formal alliance.

Fascist sources in Rome indicated that Ciano would take part in talks with Ribbentrop and Suner, Spanish Minister of the Interior, in Berlin, the negotiations, it was suggested, being designed to bring Spain into the war.

ROME VIEW OF SPAIN

The Italian newspaper, Popolo di Roma, said that Spain's position appeared to be one of "pre-belligerency." The British attempt to gain a foothold in French West Africa will, it was believed in Rome, be used to persuade General Franco to allow Axis Powers to attack Gibraltar and send troops across the Straits to North Africa.

This action, in the view of the Italian military experts, would enable the Axis to bottle up Britain's Mediterranean Fleet, which the Popolo di Roma estimated represented 70 per cent. of the British Navy.

CIANO'S VISIT

BERLIN, Thursday.

So far there is little information to hand regarding the official programme in connection with the visit of the Italian Foreign Minister to Berlin, states the Official German News Agency, according to a Press Association War Special from Germany last night. It is, however, safe to assume that the conversations which Count Ciano will have with the German Foreign Minister may be regarded as a continuation of the talks held during the Rome visit of the German Foreign Minister.

Ribbentrop returned to Berlin only on Monday from his visit to Rome. According to latest reports, Senor Suner, Spanish Minister of the Interior, is still in Berlin, and on Wednesday had an interview with Herr Hitler, at which Ribbentrop was present.

THE MEDITERRANEAN

The Rome Correspondent of the Basler Nachrichten states, says a telegram from Zurich last night, that the object of Ciano's visit will be to continue discussions on Axis plans for dealing with the Mediterranean situation.

BERLIN, Thursday.

Count Ciano is expected to arrive at the Tempelhog Aerodrome in Berlin at 10 o'clock to-morrow morning. Ribbentrop will welcome him on the airfield.

The Italian Foreign Minister will be accompanied by the Italian Ambassador in Berlin and high Italian officials and members of the Italian Press.

JAPAN AND THE AXIS

BELIEVES U.S. OPPOSED TO HER EXPANSION

TOKYO, Thursday

A qualified informant declared to-day that the Japanese Government finally is convinced that the United States is unalterably opposed to Japan's "legitimate" expansion in the Far East.

This informant said that it was expected that Japan would actively support Germany if the United States entered the European war. Informed quarters indicated that a non-aggression pact with Russia was not unlikely.

"Japan always will be opposed to Communism," it was said, "but this does not mean that a working arrangement with Russia cannot be effected."

PEACEFUL PENETRATION

The source said that "Japan consistently sought only peaceful penetration in the Far East," and added: "The United States consistently attempted to block Japan. Even during times when the British offered conciliation American policy increased in strength."

The source said that last year when the Japanese-German military alliance was under discussion an influential group of Japanese still hoped to reach agreement with the United States, but there seemed to be no further hope in that direction

Authoritative spokesmen indicated that recent Anglo-American talks regarding American use of Singapore had materially accelerated the Japanese-German arrangement.

The new position is leading Tokyo political observers to re-examine Japan's actions in the last war in an effort to charter her probable course during this one.

Her aim, they assert, is the same—to establish herself as the dominant Power in the Western Pacific.

Japan is pursuing to-day the same aims as she was in the last war. Her official spokesman speaks of an "Asiatic Monroe Doctrine," and the aim is an Asiatic constellation, with Japan as the sun and a number of small satellites swinging round her.

CLOSER TO THE AXIS

Japan has already made her influence felt in areas south of the Equator. The problem of consolidating gains remains. To this end she may openly join Germany and Italy, though, not, it is believed, as a belligerent. Closer relations with the Axis Powers depend Japanese say, on the attitude of Germany and Italy to the Far Eastern colonies of France, Britain and Holland.

If the Axis shows signs of taking these territories for itself, then Japan automatically will be in opposition to them.—Associated Press.

UNITED STATES FOREIGN POLICY

STATEMENT BY MR. CORDELL HULL

ASSOCIATED PRESS.

WASHINGTON, Thursday.

Mr. Cordell Hull, the United States Secretary of State declared at his Press conference to-day that the United States directed its foreign affairs along set principles.

He referred to his statement of July, 1937, in which he said that the Government's policy called for a maintenance of peace, national and international; self-restraint, faithful observance of international agreements, modification of treaties by orderly processes, respect by each nation for rights of others and performance of established obligations.

SECURITY IN THE PACIFIC

BRITISH ENVOY'S WARNING

PRESS ASSOCIATION FOREIGN SPECIAL.

NEW YORK, Thursday.

A warning to the dictators that if they ever challenged the security of Singapore, the Dutch East Indies, or the islands of the Southern Pacific they would encounter the most formidable opposition from the ever-growing and organised strength of New Zealand and Australia, was expressed by Lord Lothian, the British Ambassador, in a Dominion Day speech at the New Zealand Pavilion of the World's Fair.

The Ambassador disclosed that New Zealand had already sent overseas 23,000 soldiers, while her Air Force consisted of over 400 officers and men. Under the Empire training scheme New Zealand will provide yearly 880 trained pilots to go direct to England and 530 partly-trained pilots to be sent to Canada for the completion of their training, together with 1,400 officers and air-gunners.

Australia, the Ambassador pointed out, has already more than twenty air squadrons, with more than 33,000 men accepted for training for Air Service overseas. The Australian Air Training Scheme would turn out a steady flow of between ten and twenty thousand pilots and other airmen yearly to aid Britain and to strengthen security in the Pacific.

FRENCH SOCIALIST LEADERS INTERNED

MEMBERS OF M. BLUM'S CABINET

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

VICHY, Thursday.

M. Marx Dormoy, M. Vincent Auriol and M. Jules Moch, all former Socialist Ministers, and M. Salomon Grumbach, a prominent Socialist and a French delegate to the League of Nations, were all interned "administratively" to-day in the little town of Pellevoisin, in the Department of the Indre.

M. Marx Dormoy became Minister of the Interior in M. Blum's Cabinet in November, 1936, and retained the same post in M. Blum's 1938 Government. He was wounded in the Clichy riots in March, 1937, when trying to restore order.

M. Vincent Auriol was M. Blum's Minister of Finance in 1936, and in this capacity played a leading part in putting through the Socialist programme.

He was later Minister of Justice in M. Chautemp's Government.

M. Jules Moch, another prominent Socialist, was Minister of Public Works in the 1938 Blum Cabinet.

M. Salomon Grumbach, a deputy, was an active member of the French delegations to Geneva and was well known in League circles.

The members of Belfast Corporation Transport Committee went on an inspection run yesterday in one of the new trolley 'buses for the East Belfast service. It is the tenth of the 114 'buses on order to be completed.

SIX AMBULANCES FOR RED CROSS

GIFT OF THE PRESIDENT

To-morrow, the President, Dr. Douglas Hyde, will formally hand over to the Irish Red Cross Society, at Arus an Uachtaráin, the six fully-equipped ambulances which he is presenting to that body. The Chairman of the Central Council, Mr. Justice Conor A. Maguire, will receive the ambulances on behalf of the Society.

The Taoiseach and other members of the Government, representatives of the Irish Red Cross Society, and other prominent persons associated with Red Cross work will be present.

Six trained ambulance teams, each consisting of a Ceannasaí, a driver and two nurses, all members of the Society, will take part in the ceremony. A film record of the proceedings will be made.

MAJOR MCCALMONT TO PRESENT AMBULANCE

Major Dermot McCalmont, M.C., Mount Juliet, Thomastown, has arranged to present a motor ambulance to the first aid division of Thomastown Branch of the Red Cross Society, and to assign one of his drivers to take charge of it.

William Henry Davies, the "tramp poet," who before fame came his way spent years of hardship and poverty fraternising with "hoboes" in America, wandering at will and riding dangerously on freight trains, died yesterday at his home, Glandower, Nailsworth, Gloucester. He was 71 years of age.

GERMANS BOMB COAST TOWNS

Hits Claimed on Blast Furnace

THIRTY-ONE 'PLANES SHOT DOWN

GERMAN bombers yesterday attacked various British coastal towns from Hastings to Southampton.

It is claimed that thirty-one of the attacking aircraft, including fifteen fighters at the cost of eight fighters, the pilots of three of them being safe.

BRITISH COMMUNIQUE

A British Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communiqué issued last night stated:—

"During this morning enemy aircraft, operating for the most part singly, approached the east and south coasts, but few of them penetrated far inland.

"Bombs were dropped at two points on the north-east coast, causing some damage and casualties. The number of persons fatally injured was small.

"Late this afternoon attacks were made on a number of towns on the Channel coast from Hastings to Southampton. Damage was done and a number of people were killed and injured.

"Bombs were also dropped in a town in the Midlands. Some houses were damaged, but no serious casualties have been reported.

"Nineteen enemy aircraft, including eleven bombers, have been destroyed by our fighters to-day.

"Six of our fighters were lost, but the pilots of two of them are safe."

A later British Air Ministry communiqué last night stated:—

"It is now known that thirty-one enemy aircraft—fifteen of them bombers—have been destroyed to-day by our fighters.

"Eight of our fighter aircraft have been lost, but three of the pilots are safe."

GERMAN REPORTS

PRESS ASSOCIATION WAR SPECIAL.

BERLIN, Thursday.

"During this morning German bombers continued their activity in the South of England," the official German News Agency stated to-night.

"It is learned that a blast furnace near Middlesbrough was plastered with bombs of heavy calibre, which exploded one after another in the works.

"It is further learned that harbour facilities near Whitby were also successfully plastered with bombs of medium calibre, the explosions causing fierce fires.

"Air battles developed, in the course of which the British lost two Hurricanes."

"During Wednesday night and early this morning," says the German Official News Agency, "attacks by German bomber formations concentrated on dock installations and gas works in London.

"Fierce fires developed at the gas works of Beckton and Bromley.

"Additional fires and explosions were observed north and south of the Thames.

"British fighters which went up at various points to pursue the German fighters never exchanged a shot, as the German pilots always skilfully managed to keep out of their zone of fire. In this they were assisted by the darkness of the night, which was not lit up by any British searchlight activity."

RAIDERS OVER LONDON

An air raid "alert" signal in the London area last night was followed immediately on the southern outskirts by gunfire lasting a minute or two. Then there was silence for nearly three-quarters of an hour before the guns opened up again.

Bombs are believed to have been dropped in a south-east London area. Several German raiders were heard moving across towards the north-west.

Two flares dropped in a north-west district soon burnt out.

FIGHTS OFF SOUTH-EAST COAST

ATTEMPTED RAID ON SOUTHAMPTON

Six German 'planes are believed to have been shot down in a series of dog-fights off the South-East coast last evening. About twenty bombers, escorted by at least fifty fighters, attempted to raid Southampton. British fighters engaged them, and a number of fights ensued.

It is believed that all the German 'planes brought down were bombers. Two fell on land. The crew of five of one of them were taken prisoners, but the crew of the other must have been blown to pieces when it crashed. Two British fighters crashed, but the pilots are safe.

The attack on Southampton was carried out by two waves of raiders, some of which succeeded in penetrating the defences. Bombs were dropped on industrial premises and on workers' dwellings, some of which suffered severely. There was a number of casualties, some of them fatal. Anti-aircraft fire gave the raiders a hot reception, and one, at least, of those brought down fell to the ground gunners.

THE PROVINCES

German 'planes were reported over South-west England and Wales last evening.

'Planes were reported later over two towns in the North-west area, and also over a town in the Midlands.

People in a South-eastern town yesterday afternoon watched a solitary 'plane flying very low over the town. They thought that it was British, but suddenly they heard the whistle of bombs. The 'plane, a twin-engined German raider, dropped four bombs. Anti-aircraft batteries and machine-guns opened fire, and the raider disappeared into the clouds.

BOMB ON SWEDISH LEGATION

STOCKHOLM, Thursday.

An incendiary bomb dropped on the roof of the Swedish Legation in London during a recent raid and caused a fire, but it was extinguished quickly by a British employé, according to the London Correspondent of the newspaper, Aftonbladet. The Swedish Minister told the correspondent that he intended to remain at the Legation while the building stood.—(Press Association War Special.)

MR. GANDHI AND THE VICEROY

"TIMES" TELEGRAM.

SIMLA, Thursday.

Mr. Gandhi's interview with the Viceroy to-morrow is expected to have its terms of reference based on the Congress resolution recently passed in Bombay. This resolution alleged that British policy towards India was a denial of the country's natural right to freedom, suppressed the free expression of public opinion, and imposed restraints on Congress which were liable to lead to the party's extinction.

"BACK FROM THE DEAD"

46 People Adrift for Eight Days

FOUND BY R.A.F. IN MID-ATLANTIC

SIGHTED by a Sunderland flying-boat 600 miles from the coast, six child evacuees from the torpedoed City of Benares were "brought back from the dead" last night.

They arrived at a North British port.

The children, with forty other survivors, spent eight days in an open lifeboat.

THE RESCUE

The survivors had been adrift since their ship was torpedoed in mid-Atlantic on September 17 while taking British children to Canada under the sea evacuation scheme, according to the British Air Ministry News Service. Two Sunderlands, one belonging to the Royal Australian Air Force, shared in the rescue.

The Australian Sunderland had just been relieved from convoy escort when it found the lifeboat. The Captain flew to the convoy and asked the Captain of an R.A.F. Sunderland, which had taken over from him, to see to the rescue of the survivors. By Aldis lamp signals he gave their exact position.

The second Sunderland took over the rescue.

SURVIVORS IN BAD WAY

The Captain said:—

"The Sunderland we were relieving over the convoy sent up a message just before going off patrol. The Captain said he had sighted a boat. He could not stay because his petrol was running low. We went straight to the place he indicated and found the boat at once.

"All the people in the boat were sitting or lying down, except one man, who was at the tiller. Some amidships seemed to be in rather a bad way. They had hoisted a sail and were making what speed they could.

FOOD DROPPED

"When we got there we dropped a parachute bag filled with all the food we had on board; we attached a life jacket to keep it afloat. We circled round and made them a signal that we were going to get help, but they had only a semaphore, which we were travelling too fast to read.

"However, we made them understand that we were going to fetch a ship, which, we thought, was about forty miles away. Before leaving them I went down very low on the water, and saw that it would be possible to land and take them on board if they could not be rescued otherwise.

WARSHIP CALLED

"Then we went to fetch a ship. We found a warship, and signalled that there was a boat full of people, and indicated their position. I said we would meet the warship near the lifeboat. We flew back to the boat and then to the warship again, but she was not on the right course, so I signalled follow me, and then flew directly over the ship towards the lifeboat.

"The warship altered course and followed. When I was getting near the lifeboat I dropped a smoke flare, which the warship saw and signalled O.K. We waited until we saw the warship actually stop alongside the lifeboat, and then, as we had received a signal telling us to return to base before dusk, we left.

"We were very glad to see those people safe, and all felt very bucked about it."

RATIONS GONE

Rations in the lifeboats were completely exhausted, and the occupants were preparing to face death when they heard the roar of the engines of the flying-boat.

SURVIVOR'S STORY

A dramatic story of the rescue was told by Mr. Nagorski (49), millionaire director of a shipping company.

"We had made up our minds that there was no hope of our being rescued," he said.

"We had been at sea in the open boat for eight days. We had no water and our food was practically gone. Suddenly we heard the roar of aeroplane engines. We looked up, and to our joy and relief saw the flying boat appear from the clouds. The 'plane looked as if it were going to land, but the pilot signalled to us and then disappeared. Later he returned and dropped fruit and other light diet from the 'plane. The food, however, fell into the water. But we were not worrying about food by this time."

"The flying-boat went up again and returned some time later simultaneously with the appearance of the British warship. We were taken aboard and revived by the crew."

Among the hospital cases in the boat was Father O'Sullivan.

THE DAILY RATION

Kenneth John Sparks, of Wembley, said: "I was awakened by the explosion and the alarm bells ringing. Water was pouring into our cabin. A boy in the bunk above me ran out with practically nothing on. I got into a lifeboat and we rowed round the liner. We picked up six survivors from rafts. They were suffering terribly from cold.

"The worst of it was rowing all day and all night. We had a sardine and a ship's biscuit, which was like iron, and a quarter of a glass of milk. I was helping with the rowing handle in the stern at times. On the second day we had a bit of tinned salmon, a ship's bicuit again, and a quarter-glass of water.

SPECK IN THE SKY

"Next day I saw a speck in the sky soon after mid-day. I was the first to see. I shouted, 'Look, an aeroplane.' We started praying. All the children did, led by Father Donal O'Sullivan. We prayed that the 'plane would come near enough to see us and help us. The 'plane circled round us. One of the seamen signalled to the 'plane, and the 'plane signalled back with a light.

"We had to be lifted up the steps to the warship, as none of us could walk. Despite strict rationing, the water supply was almost exhausted by the eighth day."

Mr. Cooper said they navigated by means of a boat compass and the sun. He thought he had travelled about 400 miles, but discovered when picked up that he had gone about 200 miles. One seaman died later on the warship.

WOMAN'S FINE WORK

Without doubt, the boys owe their lives to the heroism of Miss Mary Cornish, a 21 years old London girl, the only woman on the lifeboat. Crouching in the bows of the boat, she massaged their limbs and made up exercises to counteract their terribly cramped condition and the bitter cold.

"They were all quite cheerful, however," she said, "and passed the time singing and telling stories, and never at any time did the boys make any complaint about their terrible discomforts.

"I was walking on the deck when the torpedo struck the ship.

"We lost all count of time after the first two or three days. It did not seem so terribly long when one of the boys who came from Sunderland yelled out, 'There's a speck on the horizon.' None of us could really see it, but he assured us it was a Sunderland flying boat. He was right.

"After that the excitement was terrific. We had to be ignominiously carried on board, for none of us could stand after lying for so long."

EXTENSIVE RAIDS ON GERMANY

R.A.F.'s Prolonged Visit to Berlin

BOMBINGS AFFECT SCHOOL HOURS

A BRITISH Air Ministry and Ministry of Home Security communiqué, issued yesterday morning, stated:—

"Last night (Wednesday) strong forces of our bombers attacked military objectives in Berlin and Kiel, and invasion bases in enemy-occupied territory."

TWO POWER STATIONS

"Four separate attacks within an hour were made on the Klingenberg power station in the heart of the industrial section of the east of the city," says the British Air Ministry News Service. This station is the supply source of some of the city's largest industrial concerns. Sticks of heavy calibre bombs which burst around the target were followed by an outbreak of fire.

"West Power Station, two miles south of the Tegelsee, which has already been heavily damaged in previous raids, was again attacked and a large fire started.

"Salvoes of heavy explosive bombs were dropped on the Schoneberg railway yard, three miles south-west of the city centre, and on a main railway junction near the Charlottenburg district, one of the chief residential quarters of the city.

AIRPORT BOMBED

"In an attack on Berlin's airport at Tempelhof, a line of bombs was laid across the northern half of the aerodrome. Nearby railway sidings were also bombed.

"After cruising above the industrial district of the city for twenty-two minutes searching for its target under heavy fire, another of our bombers located his target—an ammunition factory at Rudersdorn, seventeen miles south-east of Berlin. Bombs were dropped, and fire was seen to break out."

ALL MACHINES RETURNED

LATEST REPORT

The British Air Ministry issued the following communiqué late yesterday afternoon:—

"All our aircraft returned safely from their extensive bombing operations over Germany and the Channel ports last night.

BERLIN AND LONDON RAID OBJECTS

BERLIN, Thursday.

The German "reprisal attacks" on London have the main object of dislocating communications and destroying railway stations, says the German News Agency.

It is inevitable, states the Agency, that destruction or even merely damage caused to communications must have far-reaching results in an enormous city like London. Besides making it increasingly difficult for people to reach their places of work, either in the capital or on the outskirts, in these days of continuous labour in the war industries, it is now more important than ever to receive material and supplies without even so much as an hour's delay.

"In the Berlin area aircraft of the Bomber Command attacked power stations, railway communications and the Tempelhof Aerodrome. At Kiel the docks were bombed. Goods yards at Osnabruck, Ehrang, Hamm, Mannheim and Hanover were also damaged.

TANKS SET ON FIRE

"Shipping, barges and quayside stores at Antwerp, Flushing Ostend, Dunkirk, Calais and Boulogne were again attacked.

"An aircraft of the Coastal Command shot down an enemy bomber into the sea yesterday afternoon.

"Last night forces of the Coastal Command aircraft bombed the oil tanks at Brest. The tanks were set on fire and shipping in the harbour was also severely damaged."

SCHARNHORST'S ESCAPE

The Air Ministry News Service states that during the attack on the naval dockyard at Kiel on Wednesday night sticks of heavy calibre bombs fell across the northern end of the dockyard and on shipbuilding yards. The flash of one big explosion was seen very close to the German cruiser Scharnhorst.

GERMAN SCHOOLS AFFECTED

REICH MINISTER'S ORDER

The Reich Minister for Education issued a new order to-day stating that all elementary and secondary schools are to be closed in the morning if an air raid is sounded after midnight the previous night. Schools will open between 2 p.m. and 5 p.m. instead.

A previous order by the Minister decreed that schools start at 10 a.m. instead of 8 a.m. if there had been a raid between the preceding 8 p.m. and 6 a.m.—(Associated Press.)

DOVER SHELLED FROM FRENCH COAST

TWO DEAD AND PROPERTY DAMAGED

German long range guns mounted on the French coast near Cap Gris Nez shelled the Dover area yesterday afternoon. Shells were fired in a period of just over an hour.

Two empty cottages were completely wrecked. Two people—a man and a woman—were killed by the blast of the shell and there were a number of other casualties.

A public-house was badly damaged and windows of houses over wide areas were smashed.

A photographer had a narrow escape. "I was standing in my enlarging room," he said, "when suddenly there was a blinding flash of flame and a terrific explosion, which threw me across the corrido into my bedroom. Dust and bricks fell all around me and my mother was injured. I escaped injury."

While he was talking the explosion of another shell was heard All that was left of his house was a pile of broken bricks and splintered woodwork.

Valuable stained-glass windows over the altar of a church nearby were badly damaged by the blast.

In addition to the two people killed, nine others were injured, including a child. The dead man was James Holman, a 20-years-old milk roundsman, well known locally as an amateur boxer The shells which killed him burst as he was walking from his house towards an Anderson shelter in the back garden.

His young wife, whom he married only six weeks ago, was already in the shelter with her mother. Although the shell burst within a few yards of it, the shelter was undamaged, but was covered with broken bricks. Neither of the occupants was hurt.

The other victim was an elderly woman living in the next-door house.

DAKAR INCIDENT CLOSED

FRANCE THROWS ONUS ON BRITAIN

ALLEGING that the British forces abandoned the action at Dakar because of violent French resistance, authorised sources in Vichy declared yesterday that, as far as the French were concerned, the Dakar "incident" was closed, unless reopened by Britain.

The bombing of Gibraltar also had contributed to Britain's decision to withdraw, Vichy said, as it was jeopardising action against Italy and Germany.

According to the French Admiralty, the British battleship Resolution was hit by a torpedo from the submarine Beveziers in Wednesday morning's battle, and was forced to retire without having fired a shot.

QUESTIONS FOR MR. CHURCHILL

The French warship Richelieu, which acted as a coastal battery because of its inability to manœuvre, was shelled by the British; but it is claimed that there were no casualties or damage

It was officially revealed in Vichy that there were heavy casualties among civilians and the armed forces during yesterday's action at Dakar.

BRITISH PRESTIGE

Kirke Simpson, Political Commentator of the Associated Press in the United States, said that the Dakar withdrawal "may prove almost as damaging to British prestige as was the withdrawal from Norway."

Many observers, Simpson said, considered that Britain was in a good position to make diplomatic and psychological gains which might far exceed the economic and political value of the port.

"The world," Simpson wrote, "was led to believe that a serious effort to take the port was in progress, and the Axis will, undoubtedly, make the most of the withdrawal, playing it up to another serious reverse for Britain.

THE BRITISH MINISTRY

"This would considerably have its effect on Spain and on other French Colonial possessions which are uncertain whether to follow Pétain or de Gaulle.

"The effect of the Dakar episode on Churchill's Ministry is another thing to consider. The event is hardly likely to add anything to the Ministry's prestige."

MR. CHURCHILL MAY MAKE A STATEMENT

QUESTIONS TO BE ASKED IN COMMONS

Questions will be asked about General de Gaulle's expedition to Dakar when the British Parliament next meets, says the Press Association Lobby Correspondent. So many conflicting reports gained circulation as to what was happening that the House will, no doubt, want the whole matter cleared up by the Government, who will be pressed for explanations, particularly regarding Britain's part

It seems probable that the Prime Minister will deal with the episode in a general war statement, after which some M.P.s may want to debate it, although whether time will be found for this is doubtful.

THE VICHY CRUISERS

The object of the General's mission was to rally French West Africa to the flag of Free France and to prevent German domination being established, but, in order to avoid bloodshed between Frenchmen, the expedition has now withdrawn.

Why were three Vichy cruisers allowed to pass through the Straits of Gibraltar to Dakar? It is now explained that this was permitted because the British Government did not regard it as part of their policy to hamper the movements of French warships if they are not making for ports under German control.

British naval vessels accompanied General de Gaulle on the expedition.

INCIDENTS AT DAKAR

STATEMENT FROM DE GAULLE'S G.H.Q.

"The Dakar authorities who opened fire on the Free French troops attempting a peaceful landing—without any intention of using armed force—did so under German pressure."

This is now known, it is stated in a communiqué from General de Gaulle's Free French forces' G.H.Q. last night.

The Dakar incident has definitely proved, it declares, that the Free French wish to conserve their arms for the fight against Germany, and there will be no relaxation of the efforts of the Free French forces.

The communiqué has been issued "in order to avoid erroneous impressions," and says that the Dakar operations were never meant to develop into a naval or military action.

CAUSE OF WITHDRAWAL

It goes on: "General de Gaulle knew that the great majority of the population was resolved to rally to the Free French cause, but there has been so much German infiltration that this succeeded in frustrating their object, so that General de Gaulle found himself faced with a situation in which he would be forced to resort to bloodshed, which he was unwilling to do, as he had pledged himself not to shed the blood of French soldiers. When men of the French Expeditionary Force were killed or wounded General de Gaulle decided to withdraw without returning the fire

"At his request the British naval authorities decided to cease action. The British decided that, in conformity with the terms of the agreement entered into with General de Gaulle, they would not force the French troops to fight against other Frenchmen, in spite of their own numerical superiority. So the moral prestige of General de Gaulle and his troops remains intact.

"This incident has given the lie to the German propaganda concerning the true aims of the Free French movement.

FRENCH AFRICA'S PATRIOTISM

"There remains the fact that the population of French Africa is giving daily evidence of its patriotism, in spite of all the stern measures adopted by the German Government.

"The Free French Empire is still a very real entity. Congo, the Cameroons, Chad, French India, New Caledonia, and the New Hebrides are among those portions of the national patrimony which refuse to bow the knee to Germany.

"The magnificent efforts of the Free French forces will not be relaxed merely because of the failure of Dakar. General de Gaulle and all those who have rallied round him are all the more resolved to carry out their aims, which can be briefly defined as:—

"To defend that part of the Empire which has not yet been conquered by Germany, and to free that part of France still under the yoke of the invader.

"So it is that with fierce resolution and with pride and dignity the Free French Forces, which are gaining in numbers day by day, will continue to develop their action under the sign and motto of their flag: Honour and Country, and will never recognise as their enemies any but the enemies of France."

MESSAGE TO MR. CHURCHILL

CAMEROONS TO FIGHT

The following message was received by Mr. Churchill, British Prime Minister, from Duala (French Cameroons) yesterday:—

This message is signed by representatives of the last war and of the present war, and by representatives of officers and soldiers of the forces, administrators, civil servants, doctors, police, merchants, colonists, planters and missionaries of the French Cameroons.

"In the name of His Majesty's Government I wish to thank them for their encouraging message, and to tell them of the pleasure it gives me to know that they will continue the struggle side by side with the peoples of the British Empire until France is freed and restored, and the shadow of German tyranny has been driven from the face of the earth for ever."

"His Majesty's submarine Tuna (Lieut.-Cmdr. M. K. Cavanagh-Mainwaring, R.N.) reports the destruction of a large supply vessel, screened by two enemy destroyers."

LATE NEWS

LONDON HOSPITAL DAMAGED

The maternity wing of a hospital was struck by a high explosive bomb when German raiders continued during last night the random bombing of London's suburbs. The hospital is in a northern district, which, with the north-western area, appeared to be the focal points of the German airmen. High explosive and incendiary bombs were dropped frequently in pairs over a fairly wide area after flares had lighted up the target.

A few incendiaries fell in Central London and damaged shops.

Bombs were also dropped in south-eastern and western districts.

London's "all clear" sounded earlier than on previous nights.

DUBLIN DOCKYARD REOPENING

NATIONAL COMPANY TO START WORK

BOARD CONGRATULATES VICE-CHAIRMAN

THE announcement that the Dublin dockyard has been bought and that it is probable that it will be reopened shortly was made at the Dublin Port and Docks Board meeting yesterday by the vice-chairman, Mr. Percy McGrath.

Mr. McGrath said: "You are aware when the dockyard closed down in the latter half of 1937, the Board subsequently decided to acquire the premises and plant and hold it in trust until a suitable interest could be found to restart the shipbuilding and repairing industry there again. The proposals now submitted to you for approval fully justify, in my opinion, the wisdom and foresight of the Board in having purchased the property from the previous proprietors in order to prevent dispersal of the valuable plant and stock. I have pleasure in stating that the Board's object is about being achieved, and without any financial loss.

"We are assured the company to be incorporated will be national in character, as the majority of the capital is being subscribed in this country.

PRESTIGE OF PORT

"The prospect of the yard being reopened is good news, not only for the port and city, but for the country generally. The classification of a first-class port requires ship-repairing facilities to be available at two yards—the existence, therefore, of a second ship-repairing centre is of particular importance to the prestige of the port.

"Not the least gratifying aspect of the matter is the opportunity for steady employment that will be provided for so many skilled and semi-skilled Dublin workers.

"I trust the recommendation of the negotiating committee will be unanimously approved, and I am sure you will join with me in wishing the new company good luck and every prosperity.

"The Board, no doubt, regards the successful working of the yard of more importance than the making of a profit on the sale price, and have, therefore, negotiated on the basis of no loss to ourselves—thereby giving the proposed new interest every advantage possible."

MR. McGRATH THANKED

Mr. David Coyle said that he would like to convey the thanks of the whole Board to Mr. McGrath, who had started the negotiations in connection with the sale. The Board, he said, had made no profit on the transaction, although there was no doubt that the assets which were being transferred to the purchasers had now an enhanced value. He hoped that some ships would be built in the dockyard, and said that, perhaps, it might be made available as an air port in the future.

Mr. O'Connor and Senator D. D. Healy also congratulated Mr. McGrath, who had been chairman of the negotiating committee.

Returning thanks, Mr. McGrath said that the committee in charge of the negotiations had been very competent and energetic.

MISSIONARY WORK IN THE FAR EAST

BISHOP TELLS OF DIFFICULTIES

The Bishop of Mombasa, who was to have addressed two missionary meetings in Dublin yesterday was unable to obtain a travel permit, and consequently could not leave England. This fact was announced by the Archbishop of Dublin at the evening meeting in the Molesworth Hall, Dublin.

A meeting of the clergy of the Diocese of Dublin, Glendalough and Kildare had been held in the afternoon, said His Grace, to learn of the difficulties with which the overseas work of the Church was fraught in the present time. Fortunately they had with them the Right Rev. John Hind, D.D., former Bishop of Fukien, who would be working with the Church of Ireland for some time to come.

Dr. Hind spoke of the regret of himself and his wife at leaving China after thirty-eight years' service there. Owing to the war in that country they had to travel overland to Shanghai to get a ship.

Missionary work at Fukien, he said, had been troubled by internecine wars and later by the Japanese war. They had suffered a great many losses through the anti-Christian persecution of the present time, but the Church had been strengthened by its troubles.

He spoke of the presence of his assistant bishop at the dedication of a chapel on St. Patrick's Day and of the assistant bishop's subsequent capture by Chinese bandits, who held him to ransom. They took away everything he possessed, including his robes, but when the assistant bishop got free a month later he telegraphed to say that he was continuing his round of visits to the churches in the diocese.

Hospitals and schools had been bombed by the Japanese, and the horror of Nanking would for ever be a blot on the history of Japan. The city was looted and its women destroyed. It was the missionaries and the Church that organised a relief agency in the midst of the horror, and the missionaries rescued many women from the hands of the drunken soldiers.

And in free China they were subject to raids by Japanese 'planes. There was no defence, and the 'planes flew low to aim at their targets. One Japanese 'plane machine-gunned a river launch, killing seventeen of its 200 passengers and wounding nearly all the others. The wounded were treated in the mission hospital.

Dr. Hind also told of the murder of missionaries by Chinese bandits and of the destruction of churches by the bandits. At times it had seemed that the Powers of Darkness had had their victory, but the troubles of the Chinese people had led increasing numbers of them to inquire into the ways of Christian living.

REFUGEES STILL ARRIVING

MORE WORK FOR THE RED CROSS

Many of those among the 200 passengers on the mail boat which arrived at Dun Laoghaire last night were returning from the London area to their homes in this country.

There were very few children among the passengers, and cases of distress were not so evident among them as it was among previous batches of returning workers and their families. Members of the Blackrock branch of the Red Cross who were at the pier experienced a less arduous time than has been their lot during the last week. Sandwiches and tea were served to several people.

One of the passengers, Mrs. Bushe, Kilkee, and her three children, exhibited the pleasure they felt on reaching this country after spending many nights during the last five weeks in a concrete shelter in London, listening to explosions around them. Five people were killed in a shelter a short distance away from the one in which they tried to sleep, and the windows and roofs of many houses in the locality where they resided were smashed by a bomb that landed in an area. Mrs. Bushe's husband, who is a native of Cork, expects to secure a permit to return home in a few days

DEPUTATION TO LORD CRAIGAVON

UNEMPLOYMENT AND UNDER-EMPLOYMENT

THE Northern Prime Minister, Lord Craigavon, who was accompanied by Mr. John F. Gordon, Minister of Labour, and Mr. J. Milne Barbour, Minister of Commerce, received yesterday, at Stormont Castle, a representative deputation appointed by the Northern Ireland Textile Trade Union.

The deputation stated that they viewed with concern the increased unemployment and under-employment in several branches of the textile industry, and urged that some alternative form of employment should be provided for both men and women workers in the textile trade.

PRIME MINISTER'S REPLY

The Prime Minister described the steps taken by the Government to maintain the highest possible level of activity in the industry under war conditions by obtaining, in co-operation with the Imperial Government authorities, an increased allocation of raw materials for essential war products, and for the export trade.

He explained that the shortage of flax supplies made it impossible at present to afford full employment to the industry. The Government had already taken precautions to ensure, as far as possible, against further deterioration in the position, and he was hopeful that the negotiations now in progress would result in an improvement in employment prospects.

GOVERNMENT'S PROMISE

He understood that the industry was endeavouring to exploit fully the possibilities of the export market available, and he assured the deputation, on behalf of the Government, that the position would continue to be kept under constant review.

At Cork Mental Hospital Committee to-day a letter was received from Messrs. Meagher and Hayes, building contractors, whose tender had been accepted for the erection of temporary buildings at Cork Mental Hospital, at a cost of approximately £16,000.

TAXATION IN WAR-TIME

TAX RELIEFS IN EIRE AND BRITAIN

BY A SPECIAL CORRESPONDENT.

In war-time and periods of emergency budgets and supplementary budgets appear to be the order of the day. Great Britain had two budgets in 1939 and has had two already this year. Eire had two budgets last year and has had one this year. Will there be a second budget?

The autumn generally finds our Minister for Finance reviewing and analysing the Exchequer returns and comparing them with his budget estimates. From his expert advisers he obtains a good idea as to how the flow of revenue and expenditure may slow down or increase in the six months that lie ahead, and on the basis of such information he decides whether a second Finance Act is necessary or not.

HOPE FOR TAXPAYERS

This year taxpayers may reasonably hope for a favourable decision, for the receipts and expenditure so far confirm the view that a supplementary budget will not be necessary. Notwithstanding the uncertainties of the times taxpayers are meeting their obligations promptly, and the sources from which the bulk of the revenue normally flows reveal no signs of drying up. On the 21st of this month the Exchequer balance was £3,376,517, compared with £896,990 a year ago.

It is inevitable that, on account of the war, taxation in the United Kingdom should be higher than in Eire. In past years there were times when the reliefs and allowances granted across the Channel to taxpayers were higher than those obtaining in Eire, but the position has now become reversed. So many changes in direct taxation have been effected in recent Finance Acts that the taxpayer in Eire has had to abandon all attempts to compare his position with that of his neighbours across the Channel or across the border.

A COMPARISON

The following information, however, as to rates of duty, reliefs and allowances in both countries will help him to realise how heavy the burden of income tax has become in Great Britain by reason of the war.

| RATES AND ALLOWANCES. | GREAT BRITAIN. | EIRE. |
|---|---|---|
| Standard Rate of Tax | 8/6 | 6/6 |
| Highest Rate of Sur-Tax | 9/6 | 7/6 |
| Personal Allowance (Single) | £100 | £120 |
| Personal Allowance (Married) | £170 | £220 |
| Earned Income Relief | 1-6th (max. £250) | 1-5th (max. £300) |
| Wife's Earned Income Relief | 5-6th (max. £45) | 4-5th (max. £45) |
| Child Allowance | £50 | £60 |
| Allowance for Child over 16 Years of Age undergoing Training | £50 | Nil. |
| Reduced Rate Relief on | £165 of Taxable Income at 4/3 | £100 of Taxable Income at 3/3. |
| Dependent Relative | £25 | £25 |
| Housekeeper | £50 | £45 |

ITALIAN REPORT

DESTROYER SUNK BY BRITISH SUBMARINE

A British submarine has sunk an Italian torpedo boat destroyer, according to yesterday's Italian communiqué.

"In Northern Africa," says the communiqué, "Italian air forces have carried out a night bombardment of the aerodrome at El Daba (in Egypt), 80 miles west of Alexandria.

"The British have renewed their air bombardment at Tobruk (Libya). The enemy attack was impeded by the prompt intervention of the land and naval anti-aircraft guns. One British machine was shot down for certain, and another three were probably also shot down.

FIVE PEOPLE DEAD

"Our fighters intervened to stop the British machines from returning to their bases. Three British aircraft were shot down.

"Some private buildings and one of our field hospitals were damaged. There are five dead and ten wounded, including two women.

"British naval units have shelled Sidi Barrani—on the Egyptian coast—hitting a lorry and causing the death of one person. An Italian fighter formation has carried out an armed reconnaissance flight over Malta. One Italian machine has not returned. A convoy of ships has been attacked by Italian aircraft in the Red Sea.

"An Italian reconnaissance machine was attacked by British Gloucester fighters over Aden. It shot down one in flames, and then returned to its base.

BOMBS ON KENYA

"The British defence position at Otrub, in the Sudan, has been bombed by another Italian air formation. Italian patrols have put British forces to flight in the vicinity of Agiar-el-Zaewe, to the north of Omager.

"British aircraft have dropped bombs on Gura Sololo, in Kenya, and on Adigalla. Ten natives were wounded. British aircraft also dropped bombs on Gallabat—Sudan-Abyssinian frontier—where one person was killed and three wounded among the population; and on Magi, where one person was killed and three wounded. A British machine was hit.

"It has been learned that the British aircraft reported as having been hit over Isiolo (Kenya) subsequently crashed.

"An Italian torpedo boat destroyer has been sunk in the Ionian Sea by a British submarine. The major part of the crew were saved."—(P.A. War Special.)

WEXFORD WATER SUPPLY

SERIOUS SHORTAGE OWING TO DROUGHT

Wexford water supply system has failed, and as far as the Coolree Reservoir is concerned 13,000 people are without water. Water from pumps and wells is being used, but samples have been bacteriologically examined and the analyses show that the water should be boiled before being used for human consumption. The present supply in the reservoir, which has a capacity of about 44,000,000 gallons, has fallen below the outflow level. It is expected that it will be a considerable time before the normal supply can be restored. The County Hospital is very seriously affected by the shortage, as its supply has been obtained from the town reservoir.

KING HAAKON'S MESSAGE TO PEOPLE

An announcement to the Norwegian people replying to the German decision announced by Reichs Commissar Terboven in Norway was adopted by King Haakon and his State Council yesterday and broadcast to Norway. Referring to the appointment of the new body that is to conduct the Government in that country the announcement says:

"The new ruling body has no basis except the German conquering force in Norway. And it will be compelled to govern according to the orders of its German masters.

"German policy has control over Norwegian citizens, and all military power is centralised with the Germans, while the whole of the Norwegian defence system has been abandoned.

"It is with sorrow and with shame we see that the German Reichskommissar has been able to find Norwegians willing to accept appointments as members of such a régime, and thereby be guilty of betraying the first command of the constitution, the liberty and independence of Norway. But a régime established on such a foundation will crumble of itself the very day that the German officials of occupation disappear from the country. If only the Norwegian people will stand by its constitution and its liberty, victory will surely come."

In a speech endorsing the declaration, which was also broadcast, King Haakon said: "I would not be true to my duty towards our common Fatherland if I gave up the fight for the liberty of Norway which has been forced upon us."—(Press Association War Special.)

TOBRUK HARBOUR BOMBED

DIRECT HITS ON BARRACKS

CAIRO, Thursday.

To-night's R.A.F. communiqué says:—"The harbour and foreshore of Tobruk was successfully attacked by a large force of R.A.F. bombers yesterday and severe damage was done.

"During these raids direct hits were scored on the barracks, wharf buildings and motor transport. A large fire was started north of the wharves. All our aircraft returned safely.

"Various reconnaissances were carried out in the western desert.

"In Italian East Africa and Somaliland raids were effectively carried out at Assab, Macacfa and Berbera, while at Metemma a low level attack was made on enemy aircraft on the ground. Two salvos fell close to three C.A. 133 machines. Fires started in the north-west corner of the area were visible fifty miles away.

"Enemy fighters flew over Malta yesterday and engaged R.A.F. fighters, with the result that one enemy aircraft was shot down, a pilot being killed. Another was probably shot down, and a third enemy aircraft is believed to have been severely damaged by anti-aircraft fire."—(P.A. War Special.)

U.S. BANS SCRAP IRON FOR JAPAN

FROM REUTER'S CORRESPONDENT.

WASHINGTON, Thursday.

President Roosevelt to-day declared an embargo on the export of scrap iron to Japan. After October 16 exports will be allowed only to countries of the Western Hemisphere and to Britain. In a statement from the White House it was said that the establishment of additional controls over the exportation of scrap was "with a view to conserving the available supply to meet the rapidly expanding requirements of the defence programme of the United States." Japan was not mentioned, but the step to restrict exports is regarded by some authorities as an additional indication of United States dissatisfaction at Japan's foreign policy in the Far East.

OBITUARY

MR. JAMES DOUGLAS

The death has occurred in a nursing home at Budleigh, Salteron, Devon, of Mr. James Douglas, the well-known journalist, aged seventy-three. Mr. Douglas had been editor of the Star, and from 1920 to 1931 was editor of the Sunday Express. He was also a director of London Express Newspapers, Limited. Mr. Douglas was born in Belfast, the son of the late Robert Douglas, of Aughnacloy. Originally intended for the Church, he taught himself Greek and Latin, and was a devoted student of English poetry. After a period spent in a solicitor's office, he went to London as secretary to the late Sir Edward Harland, Bart., head of the Belfast shipbuilding firm of Harland and Wolff. He decided to become a journalist, and, meeting Mr. Ernest Parker, then editor of the Star, was given an appointment on that newspaper. In due time he succeeded Mr. Parker as editor.

Mr. Douglas had contributed critical articles to Chambers's Cyclopædia of English Literature, to the Athenæum, and to various other journals. Among his published works were "Theodore Watts Dunton, Poet, Novelist, Critic" (1904), "The Man in the Pulpit" (1905), "The Unpardonable Sin," a novel (1907), "Adventures in London" (1909), "Down Shoe Lane" (1930), and "The Bunch Book" (1932). Mr. Douglas married Eva Alexandra, daughter of the late William Good, and had one daughter. They celebrated their golden wedding a few weeks ago.

MR. A. C. McBRIDE

The death occurred at his residence in Armagh yesterday of Mr. A. C. McBride, pharmaceutical chemist, after a lingering illness. Mr. McBride, who was aged 75, was a native of Newry, and had been in Armagh for almost half a century. He was secretary of Armagh County Infirmary for many years, and was a member of the City Council, and was mainly instrumental in the establishment of open-air swimming baths.

THE HOLMPATRICK CUP FINAL

CO. LOUTH WIN IN CLOSE FINISH WITH KILLINEY

(BY OUR GOLF CORRESPONDENT.)

Seventeen clubs qualified for the final of the Lady HolmPatrick Cup at Portmarnock yesterday, and victory went to Co. Louth in a close finish with Killiney, the former winning with 6 up, the aggregate being 8 up.

This year the tournament realised for the Richmond Institution for the Blind close on £70, which is the previous best by £6. The receipts for the Lady Granard Cup for ladies are also certain to be up on other years, so that it can be said that our golfers that they have, under difficult conditions, done surprisingly well for the charity for which the cups were presented by Lady Granard and Lady HolmPatrick in 1933.

The conditions were ideal, but the scoring was not anything like as good as one would expect in foursomes; with such a liberal allowance in strokes Murphy received 17 and Kierans 11) the winners should have done better. The Killiney pair (C. Murphy received 5) and K. M. Saunders (scratched 8), however, finished very well indeed to return 5 up. The leading returns were:—

Co. Louth—J. F. Murphy (22) and T. G. Kierans (11)—6 up.

Killiney—G. M. Murphy (6) and K. M. Saunders (scratched)—3 up.

Clontarf—S. McMahon (7) and E. M. O'Connell (scratched)—2 up.

Milltown—L. Byrne (15) and P. Van Miert (scratched)—2 up.

Grange—A. E. O'Connor (4) and D. J. Smyth (scratched)—1 up.

LISTOWEL MEETING WAS BIG SUCCESS

Tocsin Gains Easy Victory at Concluding Stage

THE Listowel meeting finished up yesterday, and the committee had the happy news to disclose that on all three days the attendance was in excess of that of any other year.

Melmoon, winner of a flat race on Tuesday, was expected to score again in the Newcastlewest Hurdle, but, badly placed in the early stages, he was left with a lot of leeway to make up in the last half mile. He improved his position going along the far side, and took second place to St. Wolstan coming to the last hurdle, but the latter had plenty in reserve, and went on to win easily, his stable companion, Dundrin, finishing third.

There was a chapter of accidents in the Feale Steeplechase, four horses coming to grief, and these included the odds-on favourite, St. Martin, who came down after a mile, where Dashing Glory and Lord Boris also toppled over. Brown Admiral had been making the pace a "cracker," but after making a few mistakes was headed by Allez-au-Diable and Good Work, the former of this pair staying on the better to win by four lengths.

THREE WINNERS FROM SAME DAM

The winner is by Kirk Alloway out of L'Enfant Terrible, and it was remarkable that he was the third winner out of the same dam to score at the meeting, African Boy and Tirrivee being the others.

Sincerity, the property of Mr. Paddy Stokes, the old Irish international Rugby forward, won the Committee Plate, in which she always was going better than Ashstead, who was strongly fancied, but failed to stay. Falls were again numerous in the Rathkeale Plate, Mighty Atom II., Brighter Son and Solide coming down at different stages, and with a mile to go the race was reduced to a match between Tocsin and Prince of Birds, Golden Toff being then hopelessly third. Mrs. Atkinson's horse outjumped and outstayed the other, and scored a very popular victory.

Miss Franco, who fell in the race won by Boojum on the previous day, turned out in opposition to Mr. W. J. Parkinson's horse again in the Totalisator Plate, and, steering clear of mishap now, she won in ready fashion, Boojum being second and Derk third. Topaleen, the favourite for the Dingle Plate, ridden by his owner, Mr. G. V. Malcolmson, had his work cut out to beat Shannon Scheme, but did so cleverly. The tote takings for the meeting were £3,077 16s.; last year, £1,354 14s. Details:—

NEW PRESIDENT OF I.A.B.A.

SUPERINTENDENT CARROLL SUCCEEDS GENERAL MURPHY

At the annual convention of the Irish Amateur Boxing Association, held at the Stadium last night, it was announced that General W. R. E. Murphy had definitely decided to resign the presidency, which he has held since 1928. During that period he has played a vital part in the great progress made by the Association, and especially in the erection of the National Stadium. Glowing tributes to his great work were read by numerous delegates to the convention who have worked with him or benefited by his advice, and also by Chief Superintendent P. J. Carroll, B.L. who was elected as his successor to the office of president. The latter pointed out that General Murphy will continue to help the Association as far as he possibly can in the future.

The following re-elections were made:—Vice-president, Mr J. J. Irwin; hon. secretary, Mr. John Coffey; hon treasurer, the Rev J. McLaughlin. A motion to abolish the office of honorary registrar was lost, and Mr. D. Fitzsimons was elected to the post. The following were elected to the Central Council:—Captain J. J. Walsh, Garda J. J. Healy, Garda J. C. Brannigan, Messrs. P. J. Kilcullen, C. Gallagher and J. J. Comerford.

It is a great tribute to the hold which the I.A.B.A. has on the boxing public throughout the country that, in a season in which international competition was impossible, the Association should have shown an excess of income over expenditure of £274 9/4. There is an actual cash balance of £227 11/11 to credit, as compared with £185 at the close of the previous season. Thanks to the enterprise of the Association, international contests have proved a bigger source of revenue in Dublin more than almost any other sport in Ireland, and, under the circumstances, the report of the Hon. Treasurer, Rev. J. McLaughlin, made pleasant reading.

Owing to the heavy income tax demands, the Association is, in actual fact, £100 poorer than at the end of the previous season, as the Treasurer pointed out in his statement, but, nevertheless, the position is highly satisfactory.

It was decided to abolish the rule, which was passed last year, requiring the various boards responsible for staging club tournaments to remit a share of all fees to the Central Council.

A proposal that a Tournaments Committee be set up to supervise and control the staging of all tournaments at the Stadium was lost.

A motion that Central Council meetings be held at intervals of not more than three months was carried.

THE CENTRAL COUNCIL MEETING

A meeting of the Central Council, I.A.B.A., was held at the National Stadium yesterday afternoon.

October 24 and 25 were fixed as the dates for the Irish Junior Championships, to be held at the Stadium.

It was decided to transfer to the Stadium Fund a sum of £200, already on loan to the trustees, and to write off the sum of £15 advanced to the Connaught Council.

It was decided that, if any provincial council does not within ten days of the National Championships appoint officials to represent their particular province, the Standing Committee shall have power to appoint officials in their place; also, that any emergency arising in connection with the judging and refereeing at the championships shall be dealt with by a special official to be appointed in sole charge of the execution of these duties.

INGLE V. DOWDALL TO-NIGHT

SPLENDID PROGRAMME AT THE STADIUM

The meeting of Jimmy Ingle and Corporal P. Dowdall would probably prove sufficient by itself to pack the National Stadium to-night, but the County Dublin Board, for their tournament, have got together an excellent programme, which also includes J. McGouran, J. Smith (of Clonmel), O. Browne, E. Chandler, Corporal V. Black and R. Kelly, so several men of international class will be seen in action.

It was wretched ill-luck on Ingle to meet with a severe hand injury just before the last Irish championships, but he has quite recovered now, and, as he has been training hard, he will have his chance to become the best of our feather-weights. Dowdall, the champion, has started the new season well, so this should be a great fight. The feather-weight division will be positively all-star this season; for O. Browne has come from the bantams to the higher weight, and on his last form he is one of the best men in the country at any weight. He meets J. Bell, an exceptionally good junior title-holder, to-night, while Smith tackles J. Gaffney, of Sandymount. E. Chandler is still our leading knock-out expert, and he will have a return with T. Foran, whom he stopped recently in the second round. The programme is as follows:—

Feather-weight—J. McGouran (Unity) v. J. Foley (St. Andrew's).
Bantam—T. Christie (Arbour Hill) v. G. Morohan (North City).
Feather—E. Smith (Clonmel) v. E. Cannon (North City); Jimmy Ingle (St. Andrew's) v. Corporal P. Dowdall (Islandbridge); Jimmy Smith (Clonmel) v. J. Gaffney (Sandymount); A. Delahunt (Unity) v. W. Ryan (Avona); O. Browne (Tralee) v. J. Bell (St. Vincent's).
Light—E. Chandler (Corinthians) v. T. Foran (Unity).
Welter—Corporal V. Black (Baldonnel) v. R. Kelly (Spartan, Kilkenny).
Middle—C. Forde (St. Andrew's) v. E. Ryan (Islandbridge); W. Davis (Corinthians) v. F. O'Reilly (North City).

MANY DOGS BOUGHT FOR ENGLAND

DUSKY DASHER MAKES TOP PRICE

Messrs. Goff's September sale, held at Shelbourne Park yesterday, proved highly successful, and the majority of dogs sent up changed hands. He paid top price—54 guineas—for Dusky Dasher, a consistent performer on the Dublin and Galway tracks, and he went to 30 guineas to secure the well-bred Clongowney Boy. Mr. D. Falvey, acting for the Breck Park track, Liverpool, bought many lots, and Mr. Gallagher, after much spirited bidding, paid 50 guineas for Sandy G, a recent winner at Longford and Mullingar.
